Services set for Saturday afternoon crash victims

Five persons killed in weekend accidents

FOUR DEAD — Death claimed all four occupants of William R. Stott's auto Saturday in a single-car crash on Ohio 41, just north of Washington C. H. Fayette County sheriff's deputies and Washington C. H. firemen battled the wreckage for nearly half an hour to free the bodies of Mr. Stott, Mrs. Cynthia Gray, Mrs. Brenda Fessler and Mrs. Brenda Graham. They had apparently died instantly when the car hit a tree on the roadside.

By GEORGE MALEK

Services for three Fayette County women killed in a single-car accident Saturday have been scheduled Wednesday in the Gerstner-Kinzer Funeral Home.

Mrs. Cynthia Duffy Gray, 22, of 410 E. Temple St., Mrs. Brenda Kay Graham, 25, U.S. 22-E, and Mrs. Brenda Kay Fessler, 23, of 719 Dayton Ave., were passengers in a car which smashed into a tree along Ohio 41, just north of Washington C. H.

The driver of the auto, William R. Stott, 30, of Sabina, was also killed. All four were employed at Calmar Division plant of Diamond International, Inc., located in the Washington C. H. Industrial Park.

The accident occurred on the same S-curve ("Halliday's Curve") which claimed the life of Mark O. Dunn, 15, less than 12 hours earlier.

Employees at the Calmar Division plant had celebrated Mrs. Graham's birthday Thursday, and the four had reportedly convened to honor Mrs. Fessler's birthday, which was Saturday. All four victims had worked from midnight Friday until 8 a.m. Saturday.

The five deaths over the weekend brought the 1976 total to 11 highway fatalities investigated by the Fayette County Sheriff's Department. Washington C. H. police officers recorded a fatality April 4, 1976, the first in Washington C. H. since 1968. The Fayette County Sheriff's Department had only four traffic fatalities in all of 1975.

Stott's auto was northbound on Ohio 41 when he apparently failed to negotiate a left turn at the south edge of the S-curve. The car traveled more than 200 feet along the right berm before smashing into the tree.

All four occupants were killed on impact and pronounced dead on arrival at Fayette County Memorial Hospital. The accident occurred at 11:30 a.m. Saturday.

Fayette County Sheriff Donald L. Thompson said a witness to the accident saw no other cars on the highway at the time of the mishap. The witness was working in a nearby field.

Thompson said the curve has been the site of numerous accidents in the past. A fence which once bordered that section of highway was removed because the owners felt it might be causing an optical illusion which led to the accidents.

Thompson added that it had seemed to help for a while.

Dunn had been pronounced dead on arrival at Fayette County Memorial Hospital shortly after midnight. He was a passenger in an auto driven by Michael A. Nunley, 16, of Sabina. Nunley is listed in "fair" condition at Fayette County Memorial Hospital.

The driver apparently failed to negotiate the other end of the S-curve while bound for Washington C. H. The two vehicles struck trees less than 1,000 feet apart.

Thompson said the accident is still under investigation by the Fayette County Sheriff's Department.

Fayette County Sheriff's Deputy David J. Krupla was the investigating officer of the multiple fatality accident and he was assisted by Chief Deputy Robert W. McArthur, Sgt. William R. Crooks and Deputy David Souther. Also assisting were Police Specialists William Cales and Larry Hott and jailer-dispatcher Dan R. Summers of the Washington C. H. Police Department.

Members of the Washington C. H. Fire Department were also on the scene, as there was a large amount of gasoline spilled.

SERVICES FOR the three Fayette County women will be held in the Gerstner-Kinzer Funeral Home between 10 a.m. and 3:30 p.m. Wednesday. Calling hours are scheduled from 3 until 9 p.m. Tuesday.

Services for Mrs. Gray will be held at 10 a.m. Wednesday with the Rev. Brian O. Donahue officiating. Burial will be in Greenlawn Cemetery, Chillicothe.

Born in Clinton County, Mrs. Gray moved here from Chillicothe about a year ago. She was a member of the Immanuel Baptist Church.

She is survived by her father Richard Duffy Sr., two sons, Shawn and Joshua, and one daughter, Bethany, at home; her maternal grandfather, Thurman Search of Chillicothe; her paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Forna Duffy Sr., of Chillicothe; three brothers, R.E. Duffy Jr., Dan Duffy and Terry Duffy, all of Washington C. H.; and one sister, Miss Debbie Duffy of Washington C. H. Her mother, Mrs. Donna Duffy, preceded her in death.

Services for Mrs. Graham will be held at 2 p.m. Wednesday with the Rev. John Buck officiating. Burial will be in Bloomingburg Cemetery.

Born in Franklin County, Mrs. Graham is survived by her husband Brice; her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Russell (Garnett) Penwell; two sons, David and Tony, and a stepson Brice, at home; four sisters, Mrs. Patty Ratliff of Leesburg, Mrs. Connie Duffy, Hickory Street, Mrs. Pam Sword of Del Rio, Tex., and Mrs. Rhonda Woods of Kingston; five brothers, Russell Penwell, U.S. 35-S, Samuel of Homestead, Fla., Kenneth of Sabina, and Wayne, who resides in Florida.

Services for Mrs. Fessler will be held at 3:30 p.m. Wednesday with the Rev. Harold Shank officiating. Burial will be in Washington Cemetery.

Born in Scioto County, Mrs. Fessler spent most of her life in Fayette County. She was a 1971 graduate of Miami Trace High School.

She is survived by her husband Timothy; her parents Lester Bays and Mrs. Eleanor Lands of Washington C. H.; twin four-year-old sons, Robert and William Dawson; two brothers, Ronald Bays of Sabina and Gary of San Diego, Calif.

Services for Mr. Stott will be held Wednesday. Arrangements are being made by Richard Kelly Funeral Home, Upper Darby, Pa. There will be no services or calling hours locally.

Born in New Jersey, Mr. Stott had resided in Pennsylvania before moving to Sabina about a month ago.

He is survived by his wife Paula; his parents Mr. and Mrs. William R. (Carlene) Stott Jr., of Drexel Hill, Pa.; three children, Robin, Eric and Gregory; as well as several brothers and sisters.

Local arrangements were handled by the Littleton Funeral Home, Sabina.

Services for Mark Dunn were held at 1:30 p.m. Monday in the Gerstner-Kinzer Funeral Home. Burial was in Good Hope Cemetery.

President, Reagan near deadlock

By The Associated Press

Ronald Reagan has moved within 25 committed delegates of President Ford, and some Republican National Committee members are worried that the down-to-the-wire battle may damage the GOP chances against the Democratic nominee in the fall election.

Ford started strong in weekend delegate selections, taking 17 of the 18 selected in Minnesota and pushing him to 1,001 of the 1,130 needed for nomination. But then it was downhill for him as Reagan picked up all 46 delegates chosen in Montana, Idaho and New Mexico.

Those, plus two previously uncommitted Wyoming delegates who switched to Reagan, gave the former California governor 976 committed delegates.

Former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter, who had enough committed delegates last week to win the Democratic presidential nomination, spent the weekend at his home in Plains, Ga. He boosted his delegate total during the weekend to 1,539. To clinch the nomination, 1,505 delegates are needed.

The delegate counts are according to The Associated Press delegate survey. There are still 98 GOP delegates to be chosen before the party's convention in Kansas City and 182 that are uncommitted.

"I believe on the basis of what has taken place so far, and our own projections, that I will go to Kansas City with enough votes to win on the first ballot," Reagan said.

President Ford, in Puerto Rico for the six-nation summit conference on the world economy, had no immediate comment on the weekend development.

Ford began the weekend leading Reagan by 56 delegates and saw the margin sliced by more than half. Ford led Reagan 984 to 928 committed delegates before the weekend.

The sparring for the GOP nomination is causing some concern among Republican National Committee members, who wrapped up a three-day meeting Saturday in Washington.

Some of the committee members, who declined to be identified, said the party's best chance in November is for Reagan to agree to run as Ford's vice presidential running mate.

Coffee Break...

THREE practice sessions have been scheduled for the Miami Trace High School marching band in preparation for bicentennial celebrations in the Fayette County areas.

Aaron Spaulding, Miami Trace High School marching band director, said members are urged to attend practice sessions from 7 until 9 p.m. tonight, Tuesday and July 1 in the high school band room.

The band will be participating in parades in Bloomingburg on July 3 and in New Holland and Washington C.H. on July 4.

Ten of the 150 members said in interviews that the bitterness cropping up in the Ford-Reagan battle may cause problems since Carter is now down to only one active opponent for the Democratic nomination and is able to spend his time working toward November.

Only California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. is still actively campaigning for the Democratic nomination, and in a Friday night television address he said he would support Carter if the Georgian gets the nomination.

The Republican committeemen were told at their meeting that the GOP is so short of money that it might be forced to go out of business by election time. Unless Republican officials around the country get busy raising money, GOP Finance Chairman Jeremiah Milbank said, "we may not have the chance to fight back successfully again."

Although Reagan has said he will not accept the No. 2 spot on a ticket with Ford, there were more predictions that he would. Sen. Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn., predicted that Ford will win the Republican nomination and he will need Reagan to bolster the ticket.

"It's my judgment that before it's over Mr. Ford and Mr. Reagan will be on the ticket," Humphrey said. In Marshfield, Wis., former Defense Secretary Melvin Laird, a Republican, also predicted Reagan would accept the vice presidential slot.

Reagan spent the weekend relaxing at his California home.

In an article written for U.S. News & World Report and released Sunday, Ford said a major step toward restoring trust in government could be accomplished by reducing what Americans expect from government. The President said one great challenge of the future will be "to protect the liberties of individuals and to ensure greater equality of opportunity."

Carter has fund raisers set in Asheville, N.C., Milwaukee, New York, Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, Washington and Chicago this week as part of a three-week fundraising tour. He also says he's doing some thinking about a running mate.

In Lewiston, Maine, Saturday night, Sen. Edmund Muskie, D-Maine, who once sought the presidential nomination himself, said Carter is considering him for the No. 2 spot. Muskie said others being considered are Sens. Walter Mondale of Minnesota, Aldai Stevenson of Illinois and John Glenn of Ohio.

Carter's campaign treasurer, who has his sights set on raising $1 million in the fundraising tour, said that after the first 10 days "we're very close to being on target."

MT student selected as county lamb queen

A Miami Trace High School student was selected as Fayette County's lamb queen Saturday night at a Fayette County Shepherds Club family picnic at the Charles Wehner farm on York Road, near Greenfield.

Lisa Melvin, 17-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Melvin, West Road, near Bloomingburg, was selected for the honor and will reign over all sheep activities at the 1976 Fayette County Fair.

Other contestants in the lamb queen competition were Pam and Debbie Highfield, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Robert N. Highfield, 414 Van Deman St., Washington C. H., and Sue Mitchell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Mitchell, U.S. 62-S.

Judges for the contest were Mr. and Mrs. Dewitt Evans, of Jamestown.

Miss Melvin will be a senior this fall at Miami Trace High School. She has been a member of the Dramatic Arts Club, Girls Athletic Association and Science Club at Miami Trace. In addition to serving as a lab assistant, she was a cast member in high school musicals for three years and is a member of the symphonic choir and the American Field Service chapter.

She is a member of the Lucky Leaf Livestock, Country Cooks and Merry Maidens 4-H clubs, served as an Ohio 4-H delegate, a member of Junior

LISA MELVIN

Leadership and the Junior Fair Board. She is a member of the Madison Mills Methodist Church and serves as president of the Methodist Youth Fellowship.

South American ninth foreign student

A South American girl will become Miami Trace High School's ninth American Field Service foreign exchange student.

Seventeen-year-old Laura Patricia Ulloa, of Bogota, Colombia, will arrive in Fayette County in August and reside with the Dr. D.R. Junk family, 1973 CCC Highway-E, for the 1976-1977 school year.

Both Laura and her American sister, Kathy, will be seniors at Miami Trace High School.

The attractive 17-year-old South American girl becomes the second American Field Service student hosted by the Junk family. They were the American parents of Greta Havag, of Norway, Miami Trace High School's first foreign exchange student in the 1969-1970 school year.

The dark-haired 5-foot-7 Laura enjoys reading, dancing and sports. She is a member of the Roman Catholic Church.

Laura is one of 10 children (six brothers and three sisters) in the

LAURA PATRICIA ULLOA

Ulloa family. Her father, Luis, 50, is a chemist and petroleum engineer in Colombia's capital city of Bogota. Two of her brothers and her older sister, Maria, 24, were former American Field Service students in the United States.

Following her stay as a foreign exchange student in Fayette County, Laura hopes to spend at least four years in college and pursue a career in human relations.

Her native language is Spanish, but Laura has spent four years reading, writing and speaking English. She also speaks French.

When she departs for Fayette County later this summer, it will mark only the second time Laura has traveled outside her native country. She visited Miami Beach, Fla. for 17 days on a summer vacation in 1975.

Miami Trace High School's foreign exchange students have been Greta Havag, Norway, 1969-1970; Evelyn Baldovina, Philippines, 1970-1971; Gabriel Blanco, Spain 1971-1972; Claudia Becht, Germany, 1972-1973; Sheila Gordon, Africa, 1973-1974; Bent Hansen, Denmark, 1974-1975; and Dominique Blancke, Belgium and Ross Brown New Zealand, 1975-1976.

Congress to extend tax break

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress is preparing a Bicentennial birthday gift for American taxpayers.

Both the House and Senate are expected to pass a stop-gap measure this week preventing a payroll withholding tax increase from taking effect on Wednesday when tax cuts enacted last year expire.

The stop-gap measure is being rushed through Congress because action on permanent, long-range legislation extending the cuts is nowhere near completion.

If withholding taxes were allowed to rise, it would mean a $245 tax increase for a family of four earning $6,000 a year; a $204 hike for a couple earning $10,000; a $151 increase for a single person earning $10,000; and $180 for a typical four-member family earning $15,000.

Another bill that must be passed before Congress goes on recess Friday for the Fourth of July holiday and Democratic National Convention is an increase in the national debt ceiling. Without the increase, the Treasury would not be able to borrow operating funds for the government. The House has passed and sent to the Senate a $73-billion increase, to $700 billion.

Final congressional action also may occur this week on a compromise $32.5 billion weapons procurement bill. A House-Senate conference committee approved the measure on Friday.

The compromise authorizes the Pentagon to go ahead with production of the first three prototypes of the B1 bomber.

The Senate had voted to delay a production decision on the B1 until next February so that whoever was elected president in November could make the final decision. But House conferees stood firm in opposing a delay and forced the senators to back down.

In another matter, Democratic House leaders are pressing for completion of work before the recess on a package of changes in House payroll and expense account procedures drafted in the wake of the Capitol Hill sex scandal.

Defying the wishes of the Democratic caucus, the House Administration Committee voted Friday to turn over the revisions to the full House for action instead of having the committee itself put them into effect. Committee Chairman Frank Thompson Jr. of New Jersey said he was confident that Democrats on the panel will reverse the vote and implement the changes.

In an attempt to clear out legislation before the recess, the Senate met in an unusual Saturday session and approved $53-billion in spending measures. They include $43.3 billion for the Environmental Protection Agency, the Department of Housing and Urban Development and related agencies; $6.3 billion for Interior Department programs and $3.4 billion for military construction.

No word from ocean balloonist

NEW YORK (AP) — "We think he is still airborne," a ground support crew member said despite 18 hours without word from the 90-foot helium balloon that Karl Thomas hoped would float him to Paris.

"He is trying to fly it using dead reckoning and his own instincts," crew member Gary Johnson said late Sunday night.

"We are confident he has enough helium and everybody here has enough experience with him to know he never panics and always keeps his cool," Johnson said of the 27-year-old Thomas.

Johnson spoke from the flight's communications center in a 45th-floor luxury apartment overlooking the East River.

Ground crew members said direct contact with the balloon through a high-frequency signal was lost immediately after Thomas lifted off from the Lakehurst, N.J., Naval Air Station on Friday night.

The ground crew blamed a malfunctioning antenna for the break in communications. The failure also cost Thomas the use of his main navigational system, forcing him to rely on a sextant.

Indirect contact with Thomas through aircraft flying in the vicinity of the balloon was maintained until about 4 a.m. Sunday. At its expected altitude of 3,500 feet, the balloon would have to be within 50 miles of a plane to make contact through the backup system.

The ground crew said they did not know whether the break in communications meant the balloon had lost its backup radio system or whether it just was not within range of aircraft and ships.

In his next-to-last communication early Sunday, Thomas told an airplane pilot he was dropping some ballast to climb up over a storm. His last transmission an hour later gave no hint of having any problems.

The crew estimated that Thomas's position on Sunday night should have been 900 miles due east of Norfolk, Va., and 360 miles south and slightly east of Halifax, Canada.

The weather in the area was reported cloudy with scattered showers.

The U.S. Coast Guard has issued a radio alert asking all ships in the area to monitor an emergency radio frequency for word from Thomas, according to Johnson.

The crew said the best hope of re-establishing communication with the red, white and blue balloon appeared to lie with two ships and three scheduled airline flights traveling a course similar to the balloon's flight pattern.

Thomas, an experienced pilot from Troy, Mich., planned to follow the path Charles Lindbergh took across the Atlantic in 1927 in his single-engine "Spirit of St. Louis." Thomas has called his balloon the "Spirit of '76" and is trying to become the first person to fly a balloon across the Atlantic.

Johnson estimated that Thomas could stay aloft as long as 60 days. The 14-foot aluminum gondola, with a huge American flag hanging below, is said to be unsinkable, self-bailing and equipped with a sail.

Appetite downfall for escaped man

CANADIAN, Okla. (AP) — Nobody thought too much about the rotund man in the dirty T-shirt who dropped into Jones' Grocery for a soda and potato chips. That is, until C.A. Pearce saw the man.

Pearce, a guard at the Oklahoma State Penitentiary 17 miles away, immediately recognized Rex Brinlee Jr., a convicted bomb slayer who had escaped from the prison eight days earlier. Just the day before, prison officials had said they had no idea where Brinlee was.

State prison warden Richard Crisp said Brinlee and Pearce recognized each other immediately and "Brinlee suggested they both walk outside and discuss the matter. They walked outside and in the conversation Rex agreed that the proper course of action would be to turn himself over to Mr. Pearce."

Witnesses said that moments later Pearce and Brinlee walked back into the store and called the prison. Brinlee was tired, hungry and eaten up by chiggers.

His quiet capture Sunday in a resort town ended a chapter in one of the biggest manhunts in Oklahoma history that began after seven inmates fled the state prison June 19.

Two other convicted killers are still at large, the targets of a round-the-clock search in rugged countryside near Stigler in eastern Oklahoma. Late Sunday, Gov. David Boren authorized use of four National Guard helicopters for low-level surveillance of the area where cousins Edwin Jones and William Franklin are believed hiding.

Shoppers at Jones' Grocery said they thought Brinlee was a fisherman from nearby Lake Eufaula. He bought a snack with a $1 bill before he saw correctional officer Pearce.

Robert Jones, owner of the grocery in this resort town of about 200 on Lake Eufaula, said there "really wasn't much" to the surrender of Brinlee shortly after 11 a.m. Sunday.

Stocks show little change

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was little changed today, continuing last week's neutral trend.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks declined fractionally in the early going. Gainers and losers ran about even in the over-all tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts noted an atmosphere of disappointment and frustration over the market's repeated inability to work its way past the 1,000 level in the Dow.

TV Viewing

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The TV comedy "Viva Valdez" has been a flop in the ratings since beginning its summer run May 31 but the fact that it is on the air at all thrills costar Carmen Zapata.

What is significant about it, she feels, is that the half-hour comedy series, which can be viewed on ABC-TV tonight, makes an honest effort to depict the daily lives of an average Mexican-American family.

"The important thing," says Miss Zapata, "is not whether it's picked up or whether I become a star but rather than we have taken a step forward. We are being shown for the first time in the right light, the right image. People are being made aware of who we are and what we are about."

Not that what they are about is anything very different from other people, she emphasizes, and that's her point.

"We're just like everybody else," Miss Zapata says of her fellow Mexican-Americans. "We may talk a little differently and we may eat a few more beans than other people, but basically we are the same. Our problems are just like everybody else's — paying the bills, raising a family and so on."

Until now, the 48-year-old actress says, commercial television either has ignored this large segment of the population or else has tended to portray it unfavorably.

"Viva Valdez" breaks new ground, she feels — not comically but ethnically. And even if it doesn't get picked up by ABC as a midseason replacement next winter — most unlikely, judging by the ratings so far — she is confident many good things will follow in its path.

The series about a Mexican-American family in the Los Angeles barrio, featuring Miss Zapata as the mother, originally was developed for the fall of 1975. ABC couldn't place it then but went ahead and ordered 13 episodes for later. Other new shows were given priority and "Viva Valdez" didn't get on until now.

The delay doesn't bother Carmen. She wasn't exactly sitting around waiting for it to get her work. On the contrary, it's hard to see how she would find time to do the series again if it did get renewed.

Legislators in controversy in study of pari mutuels

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — A group of state legislators appointed to make an unbiased study of pari-mutuel horse race betting started its investigation by accepting a free airplane trip to an Ohio race track and a guided tour by businessmen who want to build a similar facility in Indiana.

A pari-mutuel bill passed the last two sessions of the Indiana legislature, but was vetoed by Gov. Otis R. Bowen.

The Indiana Horsemen's Association, which has lobbied unsuccessfully for a law to legalize pari-mutuel betting in Indiana, paid the air fare to Scioto Downs in Columbus, Ohio last Monday.

An association member and Indianapolis businessman, Ralph Wilfong, said he arranged for the legislators to visit Scioto, where he races his horses, because it "is a nice raceway" and is located in an area similar to Indiana where he would like to build his own track.

"Sure I'm interested in building a track," Wilfong said. "But my main interest is to perpetuate the horse industry and I think it's stupid not to take advantage of a big industry that can be brought forth here."

The trip was planned to familiarize members of the legislature's interim racing study committee with the racing industry, committee chairman Craig Campbell, D-Anderson, said.

Only two of the committee's eight lawmakers went to Columbus. Campbell said he and Rep. Richard L. Worden, R-New Haven, were accompanied on the flight by Richard L. Butler of the Legislative Council and Thomas Blanchard, a member of the House staff.

More on Marine training

Court-martial proceedings related to the case of Lynn E. McClure, a Marine Corps private who died following severe head injuries incurred in a pugil stick training bout, have brought to light a similar case at the San Diego recruit depot. Another young Marine, Michael J. Holcroft, underwent brain surgery for a head injury, the court was told, and has since been discharged with a 50 per cent medical disability.

Closure is that Holcroft was hurt two months before McClure. This brought no discernible change in the training methods, however, as is evidenced by the later bout which sent McClure to the hospital and led to his death.

Indeed there are indications that, far from taking the earlier episode as evidence that training practices needed reform, the Marine Corps sought to cover up the circumstances. The official version was that Holcroft had been hurt in the course of a "highly supervised close-combat pugil stick bout." The press release at the time did not mention a crucially important fact - that the youth was felled by a so-called "free blow."

The depot's physical training instructor, Lt. Larry F. Hickok, told of the "free blow." He testified that Holcroft (in the words of a Los Angeles Times story) "was injured after he was made to stand still, without defending himself, while his opponent struck him with a heavy-padded pugil stick."

The newspaper reports that the training officer previously had told investigators "the practice of awarding 'free blows' was common, despite the fact it was nowhere authorized by training regulations." The story further said: "A free blow was awarded against a recruit who had struck his opponent after a bout-ending whistle had blown, according to Hickok."

We have pursued this at some length because these episodes illustrate a point of concern to all Americans. It is that the Marine Corps has, over the years, been notoriously reluctant to humanize its training methods.

There is currently much talk of doing this, and appropriate orders have been issued. But it stands on the record, attested to by a Marine Corps spokesman, that the earlier "free blow" case brought no reprimands or other disciplinary action against military personnel. Nor did it bring about reforms which might have prevented the death of Lynn McClure. The lesson is that, whatever it is now saying, the Marine Corps needs to be watched to assure that it brings its training practices into accord with our society's humane standards.

Ruling could mandate growth in big cities

CLEVELAND (AP) — The effect of community-controlled zoning as upheld by the U.S. Supreme Court a week ago could lead to an antigrowth policy in the suburbs and force more development in big cities such as Cleveland.

That's the opinion of various planners, reformers and neighborhood leaders who oppose the exclusionary practices of the suburbs but seek growth in declining city neighborhoods.

The court upheld an Eastlake, Ohio ordinance requiring voter approval of zoning changes and land use, perhaps setting the stage unintentionally for a pattern of blocked suburban growth.

"This is not a planned strategy, it is merely an accident," said Cleveland Planning Director Norman Krumholz. "If that kind of antigrowth policy becomes widespread, it would tend to raise demand in the city."

Opponents of voter-controlled zoning say it is designed to keep out minority groups and the poor, but they and others point out that it could also involve projects politicians may approve but voters would reject.

Examples could be a shopping center residents of a suburb might think would upset the quiet of their town or a high-rise apartment building suburban voters may perceive as a strain on city services and a drain on their taxes.

Many of those projects would be welcome in central cities. But the decision may also open the way for city neighborhoods to control building and land use.

"If anything would stop the expansion of the suburban sprawl, it would be a plus," said Gale Cincotta, president of the National Peoples Action, a neighborhood coalition in Chicago.

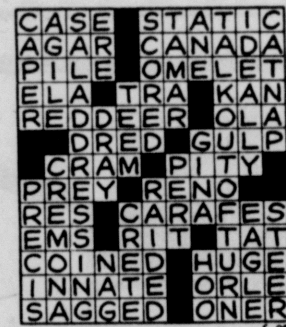

The Eastlake ordinance provides that the entire city can vote on zoning and land use matters approved by City Council, so it is unclear whether smaller parts of big cities, such as wards, could exercise the same control.

One problem is that residents of a city neighborhood may not have as much control as the residents of suburbs.

Dear Abby:

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Don't show and you won't tempt

DEAR ABBY: I read the letter from the young girl who had been used by her father for sexual pleasure, and I wondered if the girl's mother had provided tight fitting, revealing clothes for her beautiful daughter.

When in missionary work in Africa, my wife and I were at a roadside marketplace when a very shapely, young, scantily clad Belgian girl walked by. An African workman remarked to his companion, "Dimba tshe paka landja!" We knew the language; he said, "The entire body is right outside!"

If mothers and daughters conspire to draw the attentions of men to their beautiful young bodies, a few fathers cannot help but be overcome by the desires constantly aroused in their own homes. When God-fearing parents advocate modesty, they are not being prudish they are being realistic and practical.

Your comment is true; the father is "sick." But there is a sickness in our society that may have contributed much to that father's malignancy.

JAMES STEVENSON, PASTOR
WHITEHALL UNITED METHODIST CHURCH
COLUMBUS, OHIO

DEAR ABBY: You've had several letters in your column from young girls who have been sexually abused by their fathers, stepfathers or "funny uncles." But I've never seen a letter from a young boy who had been used in that way by a female relative.

I was that kind of a victim until I was nearly 10 years old, but I was bribed and threatened so I never told anyone.

Abby, please continue to alert all parents to keep their eyes open where their children are concerned. And tell young people not to be afraid to report such improper activities to a teacher, a trusted adult friend, relative or even the local police. Also, the Children's Protective Society and the county welfare department can help.

MY SISTER'S VICTIM
DEAR VICTIM: I have, and I shall continue to do so. This problem is far more widespread than most people suspect.

DEAR ABBY: You read so much about unwed mothers who give up their children. Well, what about unwed fathers who would have given their right arm to raise the baby their mother didn't want?

I am the father of two children born out of wedlock, a boy and a girl, who were given up for adoption to strangers. These children were half mine, yet I had no say in the matter. I offered marriage to both these girls and was turned down. They weren't teenagers, either. One was 21 and the other was 24.

I love children, Abby, and as a single parent I could have given both my children as good a home as their mother could have, if she had wanted them. I can cook, sew and keep house as good as any woman can, but the courts don't consider a father's rights. Why?

STILL SINGLE: AT 35
DEAR SINGLE: You may live long enough to see the courts make some decisions in favor of the unwed father. It's being worked on, as it well should be.

Today In History

Today is Monday, June 28th, the 180th day of 1976. There are 186 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in History:
On this date in 1914, the heir to the throne of Austria-Hungary, Archduke Francis Ferdinand, was assassinated at Sarajevo, Bosnia. It was the spark that set off World War I.

On this date:
In 1788, the Revolutionary War Battle of Monmouth, N.J., took place. Molly Pitcher's aid to colonial troops made her a heroine in American history.

In 1838, Britain's Queen Victoria was crowned.

In 1919, the Versailles Treaty was signed in France after World War I.

In 1941, guerrilla warfare against the Nazis began in Yugoslavia during World War II.

In 1950, in the Korean War, North Korean soldiers captured the South Korean capital of Seoul.

In 1967, King Hussein of Jordan met with President Lyndon Johnson in Washington to discuss Jordan's plight after the Israeli victory in the Six-Day War.

Ten years ago: U.S. troops began leaving the Dominican Republic in the first step toward dissolving an Inter-American peace force.

Five years ago: The U.S. Supreme Court struck down state aid for parochial schools as unconstitutional.

One year ago: A number of people were killed in Beirut, Lebanon, as fighting between leftists and rightists spread to new parts of the city.

Thought for today: The carnage and suffering which war entails are terrible to contemplate, and constitute an irresistible argument in favor of arbitration — John Lubbock, English astronomer and mathematician, 1803-1865.

Bicentennial footnote: 200 years ago today, nearly 20,000 people in New York watched as a member of George Washington's guard, Thomas Hickey, was hanged for trying to poison the general.

WASHINGTON CALLING...By Marquis Childs

The new Italian government

WASHINGTON — In the cynical view, it is unreasonable to expect Italy to have a viable government. The Italians, so the legend is, are charming, laughter-loving, given to breaking out with operatic arias on any occasion. How foolish to expect them to have a government that can collect taxes, curb deficit spending, correct the balance of payments and restrain the vast subsidies that go to state-owned enterprises.

If any proof of this happy little thesis were needed, it was in the recent Italian elections. Despite the narrow defeat of the Communists, they left the country in exactly the same state of impotence and uncertainty that has prevailed under the revolving door governments of the Christian-Democratic minority.

But the grim fact is that Italy has barely survived in recent years through loans that have come from both international agencies such as the International Monetary Fund and private banks, including several large American financial institutions.

This escape hatch has now been largely closed and a new, uncertain government, if a coalition can be formed, will have to take draconian measures to end the drift toward bankruptcy.

Again the cynic may ask whether it really matters. The answer is that it does, as the position of the West in the Mediterranean has steadily worsened. A bankrupt Italy, NATO or unwilling to sustain its role in UNATO, would mean one more hole in the western defense line in the Med.

Little realized is the way in which the inheritance from Mussolini's fascism has continued to dominate the Italian economy. The show-off dictator created the corporate state within which government-controlled corporations conducted the major business enterprises.

They were the source not only of corruption and waste, but of gross inefficiency. Mussolini rewarded faithful followers with highly paid jobs in these carefully protected enclaves.

In a searching analysis of Italy's malaise in Foreign Affairs, Guido Carli, governor of the Bank of Italy from 1960 to 1975, points out that today more than 50 per cent of the country's gross national product is accounted for by the state. He calls Italy a "new-corporatist" state.

Businesses threatened with bankruptcy and the loss of jobs are given the protective cover of a government corporation.

The trade unions, and the British offer a parallel here, can bring greater leverage to bear on these state-owned enterprises than they can on the private sector. Railroads, public utilities, steel-making, the national airline, banks, computers, machinery, shipbuilding, textiles and many other sectors are state controlled.

Disparities in income and influence, as between the private and public sectors, and the size of the "parasitic" unproductive areas, Carli says, cannot be reduced to tolerable levels by enlarging the government coalition.

As an election appeal the communists had put forward their "historic compromise" offer under which they would take certain posts along with the Christian-Democrats.

Whether the caretaker Prime Minister Aldo Moro will succeed in forming a new coalition government without Communist participation is questionable. Even if he succeeds, his first task will be to try to find outside help to relieve the crushing burden of debt and the ever-increasing deficit. With a rate of inflation running at one time at 20 per cent, this will not be easy.

Presumably Moro, one of the tired faces in and out of the prime minister's office, will represent Italy at the summit conference called by President Ford in Puerto Rico.

While he may be congratulated because his party outdistanced the Communists by five percentage points, despite the heavy Red gains, he is likely to find rough going when he appeals for economic help. Nor can he supply any plan for cutting through the quagmire of welfareism and corporatism that weighs down the Italian economy.

The NATO naval base at Naples is of primary importance. With Greece half in and half out and Turkey closing down U.S. listening posts, it is a focal point for defense of the Mediterranean littoral.

The influence of Washington and the Vatican undoubtedly contributed to the fact that the Christian-Democrats came out in the lead. But the outcome did not mean a new and vigorous government or a solution to the economic crisis.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

TUESDAY, JUNE 29

ARIES
(March 21 to April 20)

Certain changes of plan may be suggested. Discuss fully and agree only if they seem truly feasible. Don't cause needless controversy, however.

TAURUS
(April 21 to May 21)

Mixed influences. You may have a desire to do something "different" but, before you do, be certain it will be to your advantage.

GEMINI
(May 22 to June 21)

Some changes of adjustments may be necessary. If so, handle in your usual philosophical manner. Where you should "stand pat," however, be firm-but with tact.

CANCER
(June 22 to July 23)

Crush any desire to postpone important moves. Strike while the time is propitious and the opposition is off balance.

Sabina Friends Church setting for Rinehart-Reese marriage

The Sabina Friends Church was the setting Saturday for the marriage of Miss Rachel N. Rinehart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Rinehart, Rt. 2, New Vienna, and Richard J. Reese, son of Mr. and Mrs. James L. Reese of Sabina.

The Rev. Tom Applegate of Wilmington, performed the double-ring ceremony at 2:30 p.m. before an altar enhanced with two vases of spring flowers, and two candelabra. Mrs. Ellen Reese, organist, and Mrs. Sherry Rinehart, vocalist, presented wedding selections prior to the ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal length bridal gown of white satin with lace bodice and high neckline, fashioned and made by her and her grandmother. The A-line styled gown was accented with lace trim at the neckline and empire waist. The long full sleeves ended in lace cuffs. Her illusion veil edged in wide lace, was waist-length and held by a crown of lace. Her colonial bouquet was of shasta daisies, greenery, and streamers tied in love knots.

Mrs. Steve Wilson of Hillsboro, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. She wore a long blue flocked polyester crepe gown with short puff sleeves, empire waist, and square neckline, and carried a bouquet of blue daisies, miniature carnations and baby's breath. The other attendants, Miss Lou

Ann Mahaffey of New Vienna, Mrs. Gwen Gaskins of Sabina, and Mrs. Debbie Hicks of New Vienna, wore gowns fashioned like that of the matron of honor, but Miss Mahaffey's was yellow and the other two wore pink. Their bouquets were like the honor attendant's.

Jim Combs served as best man and Rick Wright, Chuck Gaskins and Tom Reese, brother of the groom, seated the wedding guests.

A reception followed in the church social room. Hostesses were Mrs. Doris Hilderbrand, Mrs. Jean Rinehart, Mrs. Ruthella Mongold, Mrs. Albertine Cramer and Mrs. Dee Buckley.

When the couple left for a wedding trip, the new Mrs. Reese was wearing a green polyester dress with matching jacket and a corsage of daisies. Upon their return, they will reside at 145 E. Lewis St., Sabina.

The bride, a 1974 graduate of East Clinton High School, is employed at the Clinton County National Bank and Trust Company, Sabina. Her husband, a 1973 EC graduate, attended Lincoln Technical Institute, and is employed at Mac Tool in Washington C.H.

Witnesses hear windup speaker

RICHFIELD, Ohio (AP) — Since confidence in human institutions is at an all time low, Dr. A.D. Schroeder told the final day of Jehovah's Witnesses District Assembly here Sunday, only a religious attitude can undo this.

Schroeder of New York City told about 14,400 at the Richfield Coliseum that "young people see the jungle the world has become and many are disgusted with it and are afraid."

He added that those disgusted with corruption and misery should turn to God. "The question remains is whether you want to serve Him or not," he said.

Raymond Hubbell, born in Urbana, Ohio in 1879, wrote "Poor Butterfly" and a number of operettas.

PICNIC FASHION TIP is serving soup outdoors with popular picnic foods. Idaho Potato and Cheese Soup is easy to make with packaged hash brown potatoes, and it travels well in a vacuum bottle to serve piping hot at the picnic spot.

Picnics are more fun with homemade potato soup

When a picnic is "in the soup" it means that it's the latest style. People are taking homemade soups to picnics and enjoying them a lot. Soups go great with sandwiches, hot dogs or hamburgers and they fill in the corners created by outdoor hunger.

Summer is the time to make the most of convenience products to get out of the kitchen fast, and packaged instant potato products are one of the best friends a cook can find at the supermarket. Use them often to cut down work in the summer kitchen.

IDAHO POTATO AND CHEESE SOUP
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1/4 cup chopped onion
1/4 cup finely chopped green pepper
2 tablespoons flour
7 cups milk
1/4 teaspoon dry mustard
2 chicken bouillon cubes
1 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 cup (4 ounces) shredded Cheddar cheese

1 package (6 ounces) Idaho hash brown potatoes
2 tomatoes, peeled and chopped
In large saucepan melt butter over medium heat, add onion and green pepper, and cook until vegetables are tender. Blend in flour; stir in milk, dry mustard, bouillon cubes, salt, pepper and lemon juice. Cook, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens and comes to a boil. Stir in cheese and potatoes; cook covered 10 minutes. Serve with chopped tomatoes sprinkled on each serving.

YIELD: 8 cups; 6 servings.

COLD POTATO AND CUCUMBER SOUP

Idaho instant mashed potatoes for 8 servings

2 medium cucumbers, pared, seeded and cut into cubes
2 teaspoons chopped chives
1 tablespoon lemon juice
3/4 teaspoon salt

John Dean called swinger in square White House

KANSAS CITY (AP) — John Dean has been characterized by H. R. Haldeman, former chief of staff under President Richard M. Nixon, as the "hotdog swinger in the square Nixon White House."

Haldeman, who resigned from the White House staff in 1973 during the Watergate investigation said, in a copyright series distributed by Universal Press Syndicate of Kansas City and co-authored with columnist Joe Scott, that Dean would never have gotten his job as counsel to Nixon if he had been given a routine White House check.

"I recruited him but never saw his FBI dossier," Haldeman said. "I assumed that Dean had been cleared at Justice. My former staff would be amused to know that, regarding Dean, I violated my own cardinal rule laid down for all subordinates — 'Don't assume.'"

In the fourth installment in the five-part series, Haldeman said if he had seen Dean's dossier, "allegations about a conflict of interest charge, however slight, involving his prior affiliation with a law firm would have been enough to concern me about the smoke, whether or not there was any fire."

Haldeman said "Dean's relationship with the President, despite suggestions to the contrary, did not exist until Watergate, and only then as a project officer."

BEATING THE HEAT—The colts pictured above found the weekend heat made for pure laziness but people who seemed more energetic managed to get to Deer Creek Reservoir before they relaxed in the water or on the sand. Last week's rains reinstated four of the eight lost feet of water in the reservoir whose shoreline previously began at the buoys and was waist level as shown on the girl in the second photo for the weekend swimmers. The weatherman who predicts additional precipitation for this evening and Tuesday, will further aid Deer Creek's cause if he is correct. Temperatures will range in the upper 70s and lower 80s. ## No more fun at Kentucky post office

MENTOR, Ky. (AP) — The government has taken all the enjoyment out of going to the post office in Mentor, Ky. In fact, the government has taken not only the enjoyment, but also the post office from this small town 25 miles south of Cincinnati.

"There are no tobacco chewers on courthouse benches in this town," said Edna Gusney, "just us women who stop by the post office to gossip every morning. Don't know what's gonna happen to us now."

Mrs. Gusney, not one to give up the gossip just because the post office closed last Saturday, made a suggestion to the owner of a nearby convenience food store.

"Mary, you're just going to have to put up a big ol' umbrella out front here, serve tea and all us girls will get together just like we used to," she said.

The post office in Mentor was opened at about the time that the railroad came to town, but now the fourth-class post office is suffering the fate of eight others in the Cincinnati Postal District's Ohio-Kentucky-Indiana region which have been, or are scheduled to be shut down this summer.

Many of the 70 families who used the post office are not too happy about their new postal address: "California, Ky." They explain that there is a rivalry between the two towns and add that California is little more than a town of mobile homes.

Even their post office, located 2.5 miles from Mentor, is in a trailer.

Fay Corbin, one of the many elderly

people who made the daily short walk from home to the post office to pick up the mail knows where the blame should be placed.

"Bureaucrats," the 85-year-old woman concluded simply.

She can recall when her father served as postmaster during the 1920s.

Then, her dad would hang bags of mail over the tracks and when the daily passenger trains came by, a shirt-sleeved man leaned out from the mail car to latch the pouch with a hook.

"Sometimes, he missed," she recalled.

The government didn't miss the Mentor post office this time. By closing the office, about $12,000 a year will be saved, Cincinnati postal officials say. The post office generates only about $4,000 a year in revenue from stamp and money order sales, according to postal officials.

A rural carrier route will be more efficient, they add. Mrs. Gusney and her friends disagree.

"Most of us have been placed at the end of Wilbur Wagoner's (carrier) route," said Mrs. Gusney. "How can we gossip in the morning when we won't receive our mail 'til three or four in the afternoon."

Swine flu problems mounting

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Public health officials who will administer the swine flu vaccine say they need more federal help and may ask for voluntary donations to pay for the nationwide immunization program.

Dr. J. Brett Lazar, president of the National Association of County Health Officials, said public health doctors throughout the country appear to support the program but are concerned about the cost in manpower and money.

County officials estimate federal grants will pay about one-sixth of the cost to local governments of administering the vaccine. The federal government is paying for the vaccine.

County officials, meeting as part of the annual convention of the National Association of Counties, also said they feared liability problems similar to those faced by the vaccine's manufacturers. A convention committee passed a resolution requesting that county and state governments receive a federal guarantee against loss similar to liability insurance

Business booms in fireworks

HUDSON, Ohio (AP) — Business literally is booming for fireworks maker James Sorgi as the nation prepares to celebrate its 200th birthday next weekend.

Sorgi says sales are about 40 per cent better than last year, even though tighter government restrictions on the shipping of fireworks have forced him to cancel 50 orders and turn down about 100 others.

He estimates will do more than $200,000 in business over the July 4 weekend.

Three hurt on Snow Hill Road

Four injury mishaps probed over weekend

Four accidents involving injuries occurred throughout Fayette County over the weekend.

Two non-county residents, one an off-duty sheriff's deputy, are listed in "satisfactory" condition in Good Samaritan Hospital, Cincinnati, following a 3:45 p.m. Saturday accident, Ohio Highway Patrol officers reported.

A car driven by Randall L. Cline, 23, of Wilmington, was westbound on the Snow Hill Road, when he reportedly failed to stop for a stop sign at the Greenfield-Sabina Road intersection. He entered the intersection, and collided with a car driven by Tommy R. McFinley, 20, of Greenfield, which had been southbound on the Greenfield-Sabina Road.

According to Ohio Highway Patrol officers, the two cars slid off the roadway and struck a utility pole and fence posts. They reported that Fayette County sheriff's deputies and members of the Sabina Fire Department assisted in traffic control and fire prevention. Charges against Cline, a deputy with the Clinton County Sheriff's Department, are pending, Ohio Highway Patrol officers stated. Both cars were demolished.

A passenger in the Cline auto, Mike J. McClary, 18, of Sabina, was also injured. He is listed in "satisfactory" condition at University Hospital, Columbus.

The Washington C.H. Police Department reported two accidents involving injury, both occurring Saturday afternoon.

A bicycle driven by Jeffery S. Huysman, 13, of 1040 Golfview Drive, reportedly pulled from in front of 910 Leesburg Avenue into the path of a car proceeding southbound on Leesburg Avenue. The car was driven by William E. Neu, 58, of Hillsboro.

The resulting collision sent the Huysman youth, and another boy on the bicycle, Eric L. Finney, 11, of 1041 Golfview Drive, to Fayette County Memorial Hospital. Both were treated for abrasions and released. Both vehicles were slightly damaged, and charges are pending against the Huysman youth, police officers stated. The accident occurred at 5:35 p.m. Saturday.

A motorcycle driven by Donald E. Markley, 46, CCC Highway-W, had been northbound on Circle Avenue when he apparently failed to yield the right of way and collided with another car in the Court Street intersection. The second car was driven by Ralph Taylor, 56, of Leesburg, and it had been eastbound on W. Court Street. The accident occurred at 7:02 p.m. Saturday.

Markley was taken to Fayette County Memorial Hospital, where he was treated for abrasions and released. Police officers cited him with driving while under the influence of alcohol and failing to yield to an oncoming vehicle. Both vehicles were moderately damaged.

Fayette County sheriff's deputies reported that a South Solon woman was injured in a 4:45 p.m. Saturday accident.

Traveling west on CCC Highway-W, a pickup truck driven by Barry O. Thompson, 29, of South Solon, turned left into a private drive located about a half mile west of the Jamison Road.

Thompson apparently failed to yield to a car driven by Paul A. Manuel, 48, of Wilmington, and both cars were moderately damaged as a result of the collision. Manuel had been eastbound on U.S. 22.

A passenger in the Thompson truck, Nancy E. Thompson, 30, of South Solon, was treated for a sprained spine at Fayette County Memorial Hospital, and released.

A 7:25 p.m. Saturday one car collision on Ohio 753 was also investigated by sheriff's deputies.

A car driven by Clark W. Carr, 51, of Greenfield, was northbound on Ohio 753 when it went off the left side of the road and into a ditch, striking some fence belonging to Harold E. Rueppel of 3211 Ohio 753. The car was slightly damaged. Carr was charged with reckless operation, driving while under suspension, and driving while under the influence of alcohol.

POLICE

SUNDAY, 2:33 a.m. - Myron Greene, Greenfield, told police officers he was talking to a "Mary Sanders" when he backed from her parking space, struck and slightly damaged his car, and left the scene of the accident. The mishap occurred along Wilson Street, just north of East Paint Street.

12:10 a.m. - Westbound on Washington Avenue, a car driven by Mark J. Hartley, 23, of 2070 Rowe Ging Road, attempted to pass a vehicle ahead, and upon returning to his lane of travel, allegedly struck a car ahead. The second car, also westbound on Washington Avenue, was driven by Canova Wilson Jr., 45, of Rt. 2,

Washington C.H., and it was moderately damaged.

The accident occurred just west of Clearview Avenue, and Hartley was cited by police officers with reckless operation and leaving the scene of an accident. His car was moderately damaged.

SATURDAY, 12:45 p.m. - A car driven by William C. Vance, 18, of 320 Bereman St., was approaching the Washington Avenue junction when it failed to slow sufficiently and struck a car ahead in the rear. Vance had been southbound on Elm Street.

The second car, which had been waiting for traffic on Elm Street, was driven by Toni L. Long, 29, of 622 Washington Ave. Both cars sustained moderate damage, and Vance was charged with failure to maintain an assured clear distance ahead.

Court orders payments to holders in REITs

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) - The terms of an out-of-court settlement between 9000 stockholders who claim they were defrauded and a real estate trust were approved Friday by U.S. District Court Judge Carl B. Rubin.

The judge agreed to the settlement under which investors in Ohio Real Estate Investment Co. would be paid 89 cents a share; those of Ohio Real Estate Equities Co. would get 57 cents a share and owners of defunct U.S. Capitol Corp. stock will get $2 a share.

The companies are in receivership, but only U.S. Capitol Corp. is out of business. The other two firms will pay the judgment to stockholders in the form of a dividend. Stockholders in those two firms will continue to own the stock and collect dividends.

Columbus lawyer Denis J. Murphy, representing the stockholders, told the judge that his clients would not be served by a ruling in which the companies were forced to pay large damages because the companies don't have the money. The dividend payments were the best the stockholders could hope to get, he said.

"There's a difference between the best possible result and the best result possible," Rubin said in agreement.

During the hearings, attorneys for the stockholders outlined misdeeds they claimed to have discovered on the part of trustees of two of the firms. They claimed trustees invested in their ventures, made loans to friends and received kickbacks.

The original investment price of shares in the two still-viable firms has dropped by more than half, but Robert Dameron, court receiver in the case, said the companies now are making a profit.

The hot, sunny weather of the past few days was expected to end today over Ohio.

Northern Indiana and lower Michigan had showers and thundershowers during the night and these were expected to push into Ohio today, particularly in the northern counties.

Today was to be hot again in Ohio with rather pleasant temperatures again tonight. Temperatures will be about 10 degrees lower Tuesday; the showers and thundershowers will persist through tonight with some shower activity Tuesday.

Mostly fair and cool Wednesday through Friday with highs in the 70s and lows in the 50s.

Three Chamber meets booked

Three meetings of Washington C.H. Area Chamber of Commerce groups have been scheduled in July.

Richard F. Kilian, executive vice president of the Washington C.H. Chamber of Commerce, said the Chamber executive board will meet at 8 a.m. Tuesday, July 6 in the Chamber office.

A meeting of the Retail Merchants Association will be held at 8 a.m. Wednesday, July 7 in the Chamber office, according to Shirley Pentner, chairman.

The monthly board of directors will be held at 8 a.m. Thursday, July 8 in the Chamber office.

Gun show draws 1,000 exhibitors

Nearly 1,000 exhibitors attended the monthly Central Ohio Gun and Indian Relic Collectors Association gun show and companion flea market over the weekend at the Fayette County Fairgrounds.

Kenneth Craig, association president, said J.W. (Boots) Sears, of near Jeffersonville, captured the top prize in the competition for the best Indian banner stone. Sears entered a three-cornered ornament which was described to be in "almost perfect" condition. There was only one other entry in the competition.

The next summer show will be held August 14-15 at the Fayette County Fairgrounds. The competition will be for the best Remington percussion revolver.

There will be no show in July because of the Fayette County Fair.

Two other weekend fires checked

Firemen assist in area crashes

Washington C.H. firemen assisted law enforcement officers during two fatal car crashes over the weekend, and checked two other incidents involving a trash fire and automobile fire.

During the 11:50 p.m. Friday car collision in which Mark O. Dunn, 15, of 7268 Ohio 753-S, was killed, firemen assisted in rescue operations and prevented a large quantity of spilled gasoline from igniting.

Michael A. Nunley, 16, of Sabina, the driver of that car, is listed in "fair" condition in Fayette County Memorial Hospital.

Once again, as bodies were removed from the wreckage of the 11:30 a.m. Saturday accident which claimed four lives, firemen assisted law enforcement officers, and prevented a potential fire from occurring as a result of leaking gasoline.

Both traffic accidents occurred within a 1,000 feet of each other, along Ohio 41-N, about a half mile north of Hickory Lane.

A trash fire on the Ester Kellerberger residence, 118 Grand Ave., was doused with water by firemen at 10:30 a.m. Saturday. Firemen said that children playing with matches might have been the cause.

A fire in an automobile belonging to Michael Smith, 477 Bloomingburg-New Holland Road, was extinguished with carbon dioxide by firemen at 1:14 p.m. Saturday. The minor fire took place in front of 1304 N. North Street.

Flames in the engine area were caused by an automobile backfire, firemen said.

ROTC cadet on five-week summer duty assignment

A 1975 graduate of the Washington Senior High School Junior Naval ROTC program is currently serving a five-week tour aboard the USS Okinawa at San Diego, Calif.

A three-year participant in the Washington Senior High School program, Rory L. Souther is one of 93 Miami University Naval ROTC cadets on summer duty assignment with the U.S. Navy.

Souther left in mid-June to board the USS Okinawa, which was scheduled for sea duty in the Pacific. Repairs to the ship which were scheduled for completion have been delayed, however. It appears he will spend the entire five-week tour in port.

The son of William Souther, 787 Duke Plaza, he will be a sophomore at Miami University this fall and is seriously considering a military career.

Tall ships arrive to help celebrate U.S. bicentennial

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — They arrived in the harbor to cheers, applause and raucous whistles, the 42 young British women who sailed 632 miles of the Atlantic to help the United States celebrate the 200th birthday of its breakaway from the crown.

Their voyage aboard the schooner Sir Winston Churchill ended Sunday in this crowded, festive port where tall masts once again line the docks along the colonial brick buildings of the waterfront.

On Thursday, Newport will serve as the starting point for a procession of more than 200 sailing ships and smaller vessels which will parade up New York Harbor on July 4 to celebrate the nation's Bicentennial.

The stars will be 19 "Tall Ships," most of them classic square-riggers with masts rising 150 feet or more above the deck. The Churchill is smaller and lighter than the square-riggers, but its all-woman crew made it the star among more than 10 British entries which raced here from Bermuda on the last leg of a transatlantic competition that began nearly two months ago in Plymouth, England.

"Tis rough work, but you get by," said Penelope MacGregor Williams, 17, of Sussex. "It's done me a world of good already. Toughened me up. I was lazy. Here you're told to do something, you do it. No buts about it."

The women took over in Bermuda from a male crew that had sailed from England under sponsorship of the Sail Training Association of Great Britain, owner of the ship.

Throughout the race which ended Saturday night with the Churchill five miles short of the finish line, the crew was supervised by a predominantly male complement of officers and petty officers led by Capt. Patrick Collis, a former Royal Navy training officer.

Miss Williams, like many in the crew, had done no extensive ocean sailing before the race started June 20. The young women, aged 16 to 25, had practiced climbing the rigging, which is five stories high, at docksides in Bermuda. Most of the first-timers admitted to terror.

Hoosier student sets world mark

UNION CITY, Ind. (AP) — During the last two weeks, Chuck Castle had a lot of sleepless nights. And he wouldn't have had it any other way. The 15-year-old sophomore at Mississinewa Valley High School has broken the world's record for staying awake.

Castle completed his sleepless marathon of 289 hours, 31 minutes Saturday morning, adding a little more than nine hours to the previous record listed in the Guinness Book of World Records.

North Carolina fair officials tour here

A contingent of 21 persons representing the North Carolina State Fair and various other county fairs of that state visited the Fayette County Fairgrounds on Saturday.

Arriving early afternoon, the group had previously viewed four other county fairs during a two-day trip throughout Ohio. The busload of North Carolina fair officials had been traveling to the different fairs as a part of an effort to improve fairs in their home state, according to Eddie Kirk, president of the Fayette County Agricultural Society (county fair board).

Kirk said the North Carolinians toured the fairgrounds for two hours, while the monthly Central Ohio Indian Relic and Gun Show and companion flea market was taking place.

"They were very impressed with the parking facilities and buildings," Kirk stated.

Larceny cases checked

Washington C.H. police officers investigated two reported larcenies over the weekend.

A baseball glove and bat, valued at $50, and two pair of shoes valued at $50 belonging to Stanley Perry, 24, of Jeffersonville, were reported stolen from his car as it was parked in Eymann

Park between 11 a.m. and 10 p.m. Sunday.

William E. Brickles, 37, of 311 McElwain St., told police officers that a number of old coins whose face value totaled $60 were taken from his residence sometime between 6 and 10:30 p.m. Friday. The home had been unlocked, he said.

Office to serve Fayette County

OYC to open Chillicothe facility

COLUMBUS — William K. Willis, director of the Ohio Youth Commission, announced that the opening of the agency's newest regional classification and assignment office will be held July 6 in Chillicothe.

Gary L. Faram has been appointed the regional classification and assignment administrator of the South Central Ohio Classification and Assignment Regional Office.

"The function of the regional classification and assignment office is to facilitate the admission of children to the OYC and to assist the court and other community agencies in diverting youngsters from the criminal justice system," said Willis.

The South Central Classification and Assignment Office will be located in the new South Central Ohio regional Juvenile Detention Center, five miles west of Chillicothe.

Willis expressed his thanks to Fayette County Probate-Juvenile Judge Rollo M. Marchant and others who helped to make the sixth such area office possible. The director said, "The seven-county area being served by this regional office will help to facilitate these classifications and assignments such as has never been possible before. We will have an expert in classification and assignment within traveling distances to the courts and law enforcement agencies in Fayette,

Highland, Jackson, Pickaway, Pike, Ross and Vinton counties on a daily basis."

Fagan has been an education specialist with the Athens Regional Office since June, 1973. Prior to his working for the OYC, Fagan was head teacher at Waterloo Elementary and Junior High School, Athens County, from 1972 to 1973, and taught at Athens High School from 1971 to 1972. He is a 1971 graduate of Ohio University in Athens where he received a bachelor of science degree in education, and later in 1975, his masters in education in the area of guidance and counseling.

Language bank aids moms

CLEVELAND (AP) — How do you communicate with a woman in labor who only speaks a little-known foreign language?

That's one of the situations which confronts 215 volunteers of the Language Bank of Cleveland. Together, these volunteers can talk in 43 languages and in the ethnically-diverse Cleveland, that's a good start.

The story about the pregnant woman was told by Joseph Martanovic, one of the volunteers, who was called to the hospital's emergency room.

Although he said he forgot what the obscure language was, Martanovic said he translated the doctor's instructions phonetically to a nurse who then was able to instruct the woman in labor.

The 24-hour service provided by the language bank was started in 1974 after a study found that more than 140,000 persons here speak languages other than English. Cleveland itself has a population of just under 700,000.

Using money from the Junior League of Cleveland, the George Gund Foundation and contributions from business and other civic groups, the volunteers began answering requests from hospitals, airports, port officials, police, bus stations, taxi companies, doctors and even the FBI.

When a foreigner calls the language bank, an answering service contacts volunteers who set up a three-way conversation.

Although Eastern European languages are popular in Cleveland, the bank sometimes has problems getting volunteers who speak languages from other nations.

Anyone know Finnish, Turkish or Samoan?

Huntington Notes

Our America

A STRANGE WAY OF LIVING

by Pauline Thornton

Life was hard for the Ohio settler in the early 1800's. On this point, all first-hand observers agree.

The typical frontier dwelling was a one-room log house with a rough puncheon floor and walls chinked up with mortar. Often a hole in the roof served for a chimney until one could be constructed.

"It may seem a strange way of living now," William C. Howells says of his boyhood home in the Ohio Valley, "but it was very common for the log cabins to have no windows whatever."

The Howells family simply left their front door open for light and ventilation, closing it only at night or in extreme cold.

Although much of the housing was crude, river travel and improved roads made the Ohio Valley an accessible region. This was not true of northern Ohio settlements in the Western Reserve. The observations of travellers John Melish and Dr. Zerah Hawley indicate that most settlements in the Reserve remained pretty isolated until after the 1820's.

When the young Scotsman, John Melish, left Canton on horseback for an inspection trip of the Western Reserve, he soon found the roads almost impassable. A trip from Stow to Hudson was out of the question in the rainy October of 1811, so Melish had to forfeit his chance to see Hudson's fine frame houses.

What he did see were settlements scattered along some of the worst roads in America, and settlers suffering from unusually severe attacks of fever and the ague.

Many Reserve settlers did not yet have their crops well-established. Melish observed that much of the soil was "third rate," good for growing only enormous pumpkins. According to Melish, "The people live a good deal upon pumpkin pies."

Melish found most settlers living in primitive conditions. He reports of one hospitable family who shared their meal of bad potatoes, stewed with pork and "swimming in butter." They also shared their windowless, unchinked, and fireless house on a cold October night.

Although Melish thought Lake Erie "sublime," he was appalled to find that Cleveland was a "paltry village" and described the people there as "pale and dejected." In 1811, Cleveland consisted of only "16 dwellings, 2 taverns, 2 stores, and 1 school."

The next man who chronicled his travels in the Reserve was Dr. Zerah Hawley. His journal records travels made from September, 1820 to August, 1821. Ten years had not witnessed much improvement.

Like Melish, Hawley rode through the mud, his horse stumbling. He found large families, even prominent ones, still living in one-room houses and thought the effects of such intimacy were "immoral."

As for domestic appliances, even the families who originally brought glassware, dishes and pots from Connecticut had few remaining in 1821. Hawley was entertained by a family which had resided in the Reserve for seventeen years.

"They had one knife and one fork which they gave to the guest. The others ate with improvised implements — a shoe knife or an old razor blade with a wooden handle." Hawley said that the family had not glasses and that all ate from a single large dish in the middle of the table.

Since money was scarce and shoes expensive, many people went barefoot. Some women began to dock their hair square behind, leaving it about six inches long, and giving them what Hawley calls an "uncouth and forbidding" appearance. The art of graceful living and even the art of conversation were disappearing.

Manners were becoming crude. Men failed to remove their hats when they entered a house, and women minutely inspected their neighbor's furniture. Hawley was perhaps a bit fastidious, but it is impossible to deny that the removal from civilization had its debasing effects.

Reports of the first twenty-five years of settlement present a rather bleak picture of life in Ohio. But the living improved markedly in the 1830's, along with improved transportation and increased trade.

D. Griffiths, an Englishman who spent two years in the "New Settlements in Ohio," documents the prosperity of at least some Ohioans in the 1830's:

"We know nothing of hardships now to what some of our neighbors did when they came on twenty-five years ago ... Now we have our grist and saw mills, our furnaces, and forges, and stores and villages in abundance. Ohio is a rising country, there's no mistake about it."

Ninth-inning single earns twinbill split for Post 25

Jeff Elliott started the game on the mound Sunday and finished it nine innings late at the plate as Washington C.H. Post 25 took the first game of a Legion twinbill with Chillicothe Post 757.

Elliott pitched the first five innings giving up four runs on five hits before being pulled in favor of John Ackley, who was followed on the mound by Stu Foster and Jack James.

The three relievers shut out Post 757 in the final four innings giving up just two hits and striking out five. But, it was Elliott who came back to win it even though James was credited with the decision.

With score tied at four apiece in the bottom of the ninth, Jeff DeWeese led off with a single, his third hit of the game. Allan Conner sacrificed the Post 25 catcher to second and Mark Fisher's infield hit moved him to third.

With DeWeese representing the winning run on third with one out, Elliott came to the plate. He was hitless in four trips, but on that fifth visit he lined the first pitch over the third baseman's head giving Post 25 a 5-4 win.

Chillicothe had taken an early 4-0 lead scoring three runs on two hits in the fourth and adding a single tally in the fifth.

Back to back doubles by Post 757 and two squeeze bunts produced the first three runs. After two errors and a single in the fifth, the Chillicothe team held a four run lead and was threatening to break the game open. Conner ended the threat by robbing a Post 757 hitter of a single in shallow center field and pegging a throw to first to complete a double play.

Post 25 got on the scoreboard in the seventh. Ackley led off with a walk and John Bakenhester went in to pinch run. Rex Coe followed with a single and moved to second as Bakenhester drew a throw to third.

DeWeese took advantage of the two men in scoring position and drove them home with a single to right field. Conner followed with a single driving 757's starter Mark Graham from the mound.

Mark Fisher drove home DeWeese with a fielders choice, but Post 25's threat ended when Conner was thrown out trying to advance to third.

The play led to some protesting by Post 25 manager Ron Helmick, who claimed the infield umpire was out of position and shouldn't have made the call. A repeat of the play followed in the eighth inning after Post 25 had tied the game. This time the protesting got more heated and both Helmick and coach John Sanderson were ejected from the game.

James led off the eighth with a single, but was forced at second on Tim Cleaver's grounder. Jeff Estep was sent to hit for Neil Spears and Cleaver moved into scoring position by stealing second. The Post 25 shortstop appeared to be out, but the umpire ruled he was not tagged.

Then, Estep's grounder to the shortstop was misplayed moving Cleaver to third. He came home on a grounder by Zack Adams tying the score. Estep was thrown out going to third on the play, and that led to the ejections.

Adams had pinch hit for Foster, who retired Post 757 in order with two strikeouts in the eighth. James moved to the mound. He gave up a leadoff single, but retired the next three men setting up Elliott's ninth inning heroics.

In the second game Sunday, Post 25 couldn't pull out another come from behind victory as Chillicothe earned a split with a 3-1, seven-inning victory.

James started the second game for Post 25. He struck out the side in the first, but sandwiched between strike outs were a double and a single giving Post 757 a 1-0 lead.

Chillicothe added another run in the second on a walk and two singles. James stayed out of trouble until the sixth when the first three Post 757 batters reached base. Helmick brought Foster in with the bases loaded and no outs.

Foster yielded a sacrifice fly and retired the next two batters to get out of the jam with only one run scoring.

Post 25 scored its only run in the fifth on an RBI single by Mark Fisher.

Sunday's doubleheader was the only games played by Post 25 over the weekend. Saturday's scheduled twinbill against Chillicothe Post 62 was postponed because of wet fields.

Post 25 will resume action Wednesday in an 8 p.m. contest at Portsmouth.

Although the throw was high and too late to get the runner, pitcher Stu Foster was right behind Bakenhester preventing the ball from reaching the backstop and the runners from advancing.

Sports briefs

Olympic trials wrap up final day

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — Cyndy Poor stole the show from Francie Larriue Lutz and Jan Merrill. Rick Wohlhuter won a bizarre race in the 1,500 meters and Dwight Stones failed to win his specialty Sunday on the final day of the U.S. Olympic track and field trials.

Miss Poor, a recent graduate of San Jose State, broke the American record by winning the women's 1,500 in 4:07.32 and predicted it would take a faster time to win the Olympic gold medal.

Springsteen wins Charity Newsies race

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Jay Springsteen, a 19-year-old from Flint, Michigan, rode away with first place honors Sunday in the 33rd annual Charity Newsies motorcycle race at the Ohio State Fairgrounds.

It was the first championship for Springsteen, who rode a Harley-Davidson to beat Ken Roberts, a two-time former grand national champion, by three-bike lengths.

Judy Rankin leads Zaharias tourney

CHAGRIN FALLS, Ohio (AP) — The leading money winner on the ladies pro golf tour, Judy Rankin, tries to maintain the three-stroke lead she attained Sunday in today's showdown with JoAnne Carner and Jane Blalock in the final round of the Babe Zaharias Invitational.

"We'll see who chokes," quipped Mrs. Carner who had very little to joke about after shooting a three-over par 75. She had entered the round with a three-stroke lead.

Olympians win archery tourney

OXFORD, Ohio (AP) — With top qualifying honors for the U.S. Olympic team already under their belts, Darrell Pace and Luann Ryon each racked up another title over the weekend, winning the National Archery Association's field archery tournament at Miami University.

Pace, 19, the three-time world champion from Reading, Ohio, unseated defending champion Douglas Brothers of Cincinnati, 1,100 to 1,086.

Sutton, 7-7, earned the victory while Mike Caldwell, 0-5, took the loss.

Phillies 6, Cardinals 2

Catcher Bob Boone cracked his first major league grand slam homer and pitcher Jim Lonborg became the major league's second 10-game winner of the season as Philadelphia defeated St. Louis.

In the fourth, with the Phillies batting around in an inning for the 19th time this season, Boone smacked an 0-1 pitch over the left-field screen to cap a six-run explosion. Lonborg, who was lifted with two out and the bases loaded in the sixth, raised his record to 10-4. Randy Jones of San Diego leads the majors with 13 triumphs.

Mets 13, Cubs 3

Phillips homered for the third successive game and Ed Kranepool hit a two-run homer in a club record-tying, eight-run second inning as New York humbled Chicago.

Phillips and Dave Kingman each delivered two-run singles in the big second as the Mets equalled their biggest inning, last accomplished in 1970 against San Francisco. It also was the biggest inning in the National League this season.

Padres 3, Braves 2

Tito Fuentes' two-out infield single in the ninth inning scored Ted Kubiak from third, giving San Diego its victory over Atlanta. Moments earlier, Braves' centerfielder Jim Wynn had prevented the Padres from winning when his perfect throw nailed San Diego's Dave Winfield at home. Winfield had attempted to score from second on a single by Johnny Grubb.

Babe Ruth results

The Jeffersonville Merchants upped their Green Land Babe Ruth League record to 5-0 Sunday with an 8-6 win over South Charleston.

The Merchants fought back from a 4-2 deficit to take the win. Ben Allen got the victory and Steve Coe led the Merchants with two hits, including a double.

The Merchants put together an eight-hit attack while South Charleston rapped out six hits, all singles.

Norman, Reds continue to hex Astros

HOUSTON (AP) — Although he can't pinpoint the reasons for his mastery over Houston, Fred Norman of the Cincinnati Reds hopes his career streak against the Astros continues.

The veteran lefthander combined with Rawly Eastwick on a four-hitter Sunday for Norman's seventh consecutive career victory over Houston as the Reds clipped the Astros 4-2.

Norman, 41 for the year, hurled the first seven innings in running his lifetime record over Houston to 10-3. Eastwick came on in relief and retired all six Astros he faced to earn his ninth save of the season.

"When you have a good career record against a club, it really picks you up," Norman said.

"I think it's kind of amazing. The Astros are a good hitting team, but it seems as if every time I pitch against them I make good pitches," he said.

The Reds used a walk, a pair of singles, and Pete Rose's tworn base hit off Houston starter and loser J.R. Richard, 7-9, to take a 2-0 second inning lead.

Houston cut the gap to 2-1 in the bottom half of the inning on a walk to Leon Roberts and Roger Metzger's run scoring single to left.

Two unearned runs crossed the plate for Cincinnati in the fourth on a throwing error by Richard and Ken Griffey's fielder's choice.

Bob Watson blasted his eighth homer of the season in the sixth inning, providing the Astros with their second run.

The victory over Houston gave Cincinnati a 2-1 decision in their three-game weekend series as the Astros failed for the 18th consecutive time to win a series from the Reds.

Houston's loss was the 11th in their last 14 games while the victory kept Cincinnati perched atop the standings in the National League's West Division.

In this Bicentennial year, it's only fitting that baseball share in the celebration.

Woody Fryman and Manny Mota haven't reached the "200" level yet — but at least they're halfway there.

As a result of Sunday's performances, both players hit the 100 mark in aspects of the game — Fryman with his pitching and Mota with his hitting.

An especially elated Fryman gained his 100th major league victory, leading the Montreal Expos to a 4-3 decision over the Pittsburgh Pirates. A pleased Mota collected his 100th career pinch-hit, helping the Los Angeles Dodgers beat the San Francisco Giants 12-8.

Dodgers 12, Giants 8

Run-scoring singles by Ellie Rodriguez and Mota broke a tie in the fifth inning, helping Los Angeles overcome two Bobby Murcer home runs and defeat San Francisco. Murcer drove in four runs for the Giants. Five of his nine home runs this season have come against Los Angeles.

The Dodgers broke a 6-6 tie in the fifth when Ed Goodson, Bill Russell and Rodriguez singled for one run. Mota followed with a pinch-hit single, giving the Dodgers an 8-6 lead. The Dodgers added three runs in the eighth, two on Lee Lacy's bases-loaded single. Don

WASHINGTON REPORT

From

WILLIAM H. HARSHA
Representative To Congress
6th District, Ohio

Two hundred years ago, John Adams set the tone for marking the observance of Independence Day.

As one who had figured prominently in the struggle for independence and the birth of our magnificent Declaration of Independence, Adams could see vividly the importance of that document's approval by the Continental Congress to America's future.

His early description of the celebration of independence has in large part characterized July 4th observances throughout our nation's 200-year history.

"I am well aware of the toil and blood and treasure it will cost us to maintain this Declaration," said Adams. And he continued: "Yet, throughout all the gloom I see the rays of ravishing light and glory. This is our day of deliverance. With solemn acts of devotion we ought to commemorate it. With pomp and show, games, sports, guns, bells, bonfires, and illuminations from one end of the continent to the other, from this time forth forevermore."

Americans everywhere are gearing up for the kind of Bicentennial celebration of Independence Day that would have made John Adams proud. The occasion is worthy of all the lavish attention it is certain to receive in a year filled with historic and meaningful anniversary observances.

After all, independence is what our Bicentennial is all about. John Adams could speak first-hand of the unbelievable hardships, suffering, and loss of life and property which characterized the struggle for independence in colonial America.

In signing the Declaration of Independence, representatives of the 13 colonies severed our political bonds with England and its oppressive rule. The vows on paper were than backed up with hard-won victories on the battlefield. Because that blow for independence and freedom from tyranny was successful, we are able to gather on this July 4th for appropriate celebrations across the land.

Yet, we must never forget that attainment of independence was but the first step. The Founding Fathers knew that freedoms won would soon mean freedoms challenged, if not again by Mothe England, certainly by some force.

John Adams talked of "toil and blood and treasure" as the costs of maintaining our independence. Even in the formative days of our new government, Benjamin Franklin, when asked what kind of government had been formed, cautioned, "a republic, if you can keep it."

Over the course of 200 years, our republic has been assaulted from without and within. And while our system has suffered occasional setbacks, it has survived essentially intact, so that it stands strong today amid the totalitarianism which characterizes so many world governments.

Our federal union is now the oldest continuously existing republic on earth operating under its original Constitution. It will continue only if we can regenerate and rekindle the kind of national spirit which gained us our independence—a precious commodity in this turbulent age—and has enabled us to grow and prosper.

We need to recapture the spirit of pioneer Americans who conquered seemingly impenetrable frontiers with a courage and determination which viewed obstacles as challenges.

We are, in a sense, the "pioneers" of America's third century. More than a physical challenge, ours is one of will. Are we going to make the commitment necessary to preserve and build on those successes achieved over the past 200 years?

Will we be equal to the hard questions which may need to be answered and the difficult steps which may be required in the years ahead?

As we celebrate America's Bicentennial and spotlight her grand achievements, we will never have a better opportunity to resolve that the next century will see an even greater America.

CAMERA Angles

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

Ron Galella, a controversial and successful candid photographer of celebrities, presents a glittering parade of stars to justify his title in his new book, "OFFGUARD: A Paparazzo Look at the Beautiful People."

The procession of personalities proceeds through more than 350 images accompanied by admiring, colorful or revealing comments by the author, candid in words as well as in pictures.

The world's celebrities, he says, normally hire press agents to present a posed, packaged and prefabricated look, all glossed over for public approval. He, however, is after the natural, spontaneous look which presents the non-plasticized core of the stars in their unposed moods and moments.

It is not an easy job, Galella reports. In fact, it is hazardous and risky. In pursuit of his pictures, he says he has: had his jaw broken by Marlon Brando; been beaten by Richard Burton's bodyguards; been soaked by a high-pressure hose by friends of Brigitte Bardot; and been chased by Secret Service agents with instructions to smash his camera.

Despite the threats, occasional violence — and sometimes a display of folly which brings public humiliation — Galella sums up the pros and cons and makes this assessment:

"But I don't care. I see myself as the dean of American paparazzo photo-journalism, a self-appointed role, perhaps, but one I figure I've paid the dues to own. I love my work — and I'm good at it. Maybe the best at it."

His aim is not to strip the celebrity of glamour by catching him unaware, he explains. On the contrary, his purpose is to reveal the real glamour which made the celebrity a star in the first place, but which is often hidden after stardom is achieved. That's why he stalks his subjects unannounced to catch them offguard, to reveal them candidly and honestly.

Galella credits Italian film director Federico Fellini for popularizing the paparazzo style of photography. He created a character, Signor Paparazzo, in his film La Dolce Vita. The signor was a photographer who prowled Rome's Via Veneto continually shooting candid of the city's celebrities. The name soon symbolized the distinctive type of Italian freelance cameramen who haunted night clubs and hide-aways where stars and their companions who preferred to remain incognito were their targets.

Galella adopted and defends the paparazzo approach.

"We're talking about completely unrehearsed photography," he says, "where the expression and gesture are thoroughly spontaneous and unique to the moment and circumstance. You have to go after people where and when you can discover them in natural situations, without appointments and without an alert of any kind."

When celebrities control the situation through public relations people, the photos from such sessions are lifeless, canned and show nothing that is surprising or revealing, he believes.

"What results is not information but propaganda, not news but advertising," Galella concludes. "But I believe I'm a news photographer and that it's only proper for me, like other journalists, to use my reporting materials as I choose and as I think best serves news-gathering."

With his camera, he has become a private eye, outflanking bodyguards to focus on stars as they come and go in public places such as at airports, hotel lobbies, in streets, theaters, restaurants and at parties.

Galella acknowledges this type of photography often raises the dilemma of two fundamental but opposing rights: a person's right of privacy and the public's right to be informed about public figures.

This controversy led to the famous court case brought by Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis, with a countersuit by Galella, each claiming harassment. The decision, in March 1972, was a victory for Mrs. Onassis. Galella was prohibited from coming any closer than 25 feet from Jackie. But the court also decided that a celebrity is a public figure in public places and, in these situations, waives the right to privacy.

Galella hails this part of the decision as an important victory for all journalists in support of freedom of the press.

Celebrities are created for the public... and by the public. They also create in the public an insatiable curiosity about their stars' lives — their lifestyles, their personal activities, their fun and games. When a celebrity becomes unavailable, uncooperative and elusive to photographers, the demand for pictures increases proportionately. And so does the value of pictures which are obtained.

Isn't that the climate which fosters the growth of the paparazzo approach in photography and which has made Ron Galella the outstanding successful practitioner of that art?

His new book seems to answer the question with a "Yes." ("Offguard" is published by McGraw-Hill.)

Role of 'The Ladies' In U.S. History Shown

THIS ENGLISH political cartoon satirizes the occasion on Oct. 25, 1774, when 51 of the leading women of the Albemarle region of North Carolina gathered at Edenton and drew up a resolution boycotting use of "East India tea" as a token of support for the American cause. The cartoon is from the exhibition, "...Remember the Ladies...Women in America 1750-1815," which will tour the country after its initial showing in Plymouth, Mass. (Engraving courtesy Boston Public Library.)

PLYMOUTH, Mass. (AP) — Following its premiere three-month showing here starting June 30, an exhibition that examines the role of women during a dramatic period in American history will be on view through 1977 in a number of cities across the nation.

"...Remember the Ladies...Women in America 1750-1815" provides an overview of the domestic life and fluctuating status of all American women — society women, working women, American Indian women, slaves and indentured servants — from the Revolution to the height of the Republican Era.

Many of its documents, artifacts and works of art, on loan from private collections, museums and historical societies, will be on national view for the first time, according to Conover Hunt, a noted American curator who organized the show, jointly sponsored by Clairol and Philip Morris Inc.

"The exhibition is a rediscovery of the diverse role played by women during the era of American independence, a story largely ignored, suppressed or forgotten today," says Miss Hunt, former director of the DAR Museum in Washington, whose search for material took her to 110 museums and private collections.

"In the middle of the 18th century, American women had achieved a status they would not regain until our own time," she adds. "But from 1750 to 1815, the status of women declined sharply. Upper class women of the early 19th century withdrew from economic and political life, opting for domesticity and dependence."

For all others, including slaves and Indian women, freedom and opportunity became more elusive. In the process, the very real and substantial role of women in the creation of American independence was literally forgotten. The written history of the period not only diminished women's role; it all but obliterated it.

The exhibition fills in that gap in our nation's history by providing a well rounded view of our "founding women" and revealing far greater levels of heroism, influence and achievement than standard history has ever recognized, Miss Hunt points out.

Its highlights include: the lives of Revolutionary-era women, some of whom made guns as well as flags, became expert spies, scouts and smugglers of supplies for the Continental Army and, in some cases, fought as soldiers in the cause of independence.

Also the prose and polemics of Mercy Otis Warren, a major influence on the leaders and events that shaped early U.S. history, and the story of the internationally acclaimed slave poet Phillis Wheatley.

There are displays, including her cookbook, concerning the outspoken Abigail Adams, whose entreaty to her husband John to "remember the ladies" in the writing of the Constitution — which he shrugged off — gives the exhibition its title.

Included in the wide-ranging collection gathered by Miss Hunt are an exceptional selection of women's paintings and needlework; a wealth of period costumes, furnishings, engravings and portraits; Dolley Madison's turban, and a first edition of Miss Warren's "History of the American Revolution" with her notations.

Ohio weekend road toll reaches bloody 19

By The Associated Press
A pair of multiple-fatality traffic accidents, three motorcycle deaths and three pedestrian fatalities helped push Ohio's weekend traffic toll to at least 19 by late Sunday night.
A three-car accident Saturday on the Ohio Turnpike killed two northern Ohio girls.
The other multiple-fatality accident killed three women passengers and a male driver when their car missed a curve, skidded 258 feet, then hit a fence and tree near Washington Court House.

It was at almost the same spot where a teen-age boy died 13 hours earlier when the car in which he was a passenger missed the same curve from the other direction and hit another tree.
The state Highway Patrol's tabulation of weekend highway deaths begins at 6 p.m. Friday and continues until midnight Sunday.

Food value concerns American consumers

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer
A new government study indicates that Americans are concerned about the nutritional value of the food they eat and are willing to pay a little more for extra information.
The study was conducted by the division of consumer studies of the Food and Drug Administration. It was the second such survey to try to check such items as consumer knowledge on nutrition.
The final results of the study have not been published and are expected out in about a month. A preliminary report provides some clues, however.
Among the findings:
—Almost three out of five shoppers — 59 per cent — say they have seen nutritional labeling (now required for manufacturers who make a nutritional claim for their products). More than half of those who are familiar with the labeling say they use the information in choosing some foods and beverages.

—Countering claims by some industry spokesmen who say consumers would object to the higher prices resulting from nutritional labeling, the FDA survey found that 65 per cent of those questioned would be willing to pay at least 10 cents more on their weekly food bill in exchange for the information. Fifty-six per cent would be willing to pay an extra 30 cents and 40 per cent would be willing to pay an extra 50 cents.
—In addition to looking at nutritional information on labels, shoppers also check for items such as open dating and unit pricing. About 75 per cent of those surveyed looked for dates on products and 41 per cent looked for unit pricing.

At the same time, however, there were indications that consumers don't always understand the information they get. When asked what the date on a milk carton meant, for example, more than half of those questioned either were unsure or mistakenly thought the milk should be used by the date given. (It should have been sold by the listed date.) More than half the shoppers — 62 per cent — said they would rather have the "use by" date instead of the "sell by" date.
—Many consumers are misinformed about basic nutrition and the problem is more severe among those with less education. Two out of five people surveyed didn't understand the "U.S. Recommended Daily Allowance" or RDA part of the label. (The government recommends a given amount of nutrients such as protein and vitamins for every adult per day; nutritional labeling gives the percentage of these requirements provided by one serving of the product.)

The survey covered 1,664 persons who do at least half the food shopping for their households. They were interviewed in their homes.

Misbehaving inmates put on diapers, given bottles

WALLA WALLA, Wash. (AP) — Some Washington State Penitentiary inmates who misbehaved had to wear diapers, crawl on the floor and carry baby bottles. Others were chained and handcuffed to beds.
It was all part of Dr. William Hunter's system for modifying the behavior of inmates who had a history of violence and self-destruction. The program was praised by many penal experts, and it was condemned by many lawyers defending inmate clients.
"Probably the most effective rehabilitation program that may well exist in the prison system," said a Johns Hopkins University expert. Said an attorney, "He beat people into submission."
The psychologist, relieved as director of the prison's mental health program June 2, said he feels he was sacrificed by politicians "who want to save their own throats." He is now a therapist, with two months to go to retirement at 67.

Hunter, in an interview, said his methods worked. They dealt with the "worst, most hopeless people in this state" on their own levels, he said.
"The makeup of the psychopath's personality is such that he does not comprehend the feeling he is trying to cover up," Hunter said. "He is usually sensitive and insecure, but he acts callous and tough because he doesn't want anyone to know it."
"As long as we treat ignorance with punishment, we won't help the guy."
"If a grown man urinates in his pants and acts like a baby, he isn't punished by being put in diapers because it doesn't embarrass him."
"The point is to get him to realize what playing the role of the baby is all the way. In fact, all this penitentiary is a big babysitting operation."
Hunter said he treated more than 1,000 inmate-patients in his 12 years at the prison. And he said he could not recall one individual in his program who returned to the prison after being paroled.

Services set for Saturday afternoon crash victims

Five persons killed in weekend accidents

FOUR DEAD — Death claimed all four occupants of William R. Stott's auto Saturday in a single-car crash on Ohio 41, just north of Washington C. H. Fayette County sheriff's deputies and Washington C. H. firemen battled the wreckage for nearly half an hour to free the bodies of Mr. Stott, Mrs. Cynthia Gray, Mrs. Brenda Fessler and Mrs. Brenda Graham. They had apparently died instantly when the car hit a tree on the roadside.

By GEORGE MALEK

Services for three Fayette County women killed in a single-car accident Saturday have been scheduled Wednesday in the Gerstner-Kinzer Funeral Home.

Mrs. Cynthia Duffy Gray, 22, of 410 E. Temple St., Mrs. Brenda Kay Graham, 25, U.S. 22-E, and Mrs. Brenda Kay Fessler, 23, of 719 Dayton Ave., were passengers in a car which smashed into a tree along Ohio 41, just north of Washington C. H.

The driver of the auto, William R. Stott, 30, of Sabina, was also killed.

All four were employed at Calmar Division plant of Diamond International, Inc., located in the Washington C. H. Industrial Park.

The accident occurred on the same S-curve ("Halliday's Curve") which claimed the life of Mark O. Dunn, 15, less than 12 hours earlier.

Employees at the Calmar Division plant had celebrated Mrs. Graham's birthday Thursday, and the four had reportedly convened to honor Mrs. Fessler's birthday, which was Saturday. All four victims had worked from midnight Friday until 8 a.m. Saturday.

The five deaths over the weekend brought the 1976 total to 11 highway fatalities investigated by the Fayette County Sheriff's Department. Washington C. H. police officers recorded a fatality April 4, 1976, the first in Washington C. H. since 1968. The Fayette County Sheriff's Department had only four traffic fatalities in all of 1975.

Stott's auto was northbound on Ohio 41 when he apparently failed to negotiate a left turn at the south edge of the S-curve. The car traveled more than 200 feet along the right berm before smashing into the tree.

All four occupants were killed on impact and pronounced dead on arrival at Fayette County Memorial Hospital. The accident occurred at 11:30 a.m. Saturday.

Fayette County Sheriff Donald L. Thompson said a witness to the accident saw no other cars on the highway at the time of the mishap. The witness was working in a nearby field.

Thompson said the curve has been the site of numerous accidents in the past. A fence which once bordered that section of highway was removed because the owners felt it might be causing an optical illusion which led to the accidents.

Thompson added that it had seemed to help for a while.

Dunn had been pronounced dead on arrival at Fayette County Memorial Hospital shortly after midnight. He was a passenger in an auto driven by Michael A. Nunley, 16, of Sabina. Nunley is listed in "fair" condition at Fayette County Memorial Hospital.

The driver apparently failed to negotiate the other end of the S-curve while bound for Washington C. H. The two vehicles struck trees less than 1,000 feet apart.

Thompson said the accident is still under investigation by the Fayette County Sheriff's Department.

Fayette County Sheriff's Deputy David J. Krupla was the investigating officer of the multiple fatality accident and he was assisted by Chief Deputy Robert W. McArthur, Sgt. William R. Crooks and Deputy David Souther. Also assisting were Police Specialists William Cales and Larry Hott and jailer-dispatcher Dan R. Summers of the Washington C. H. Police Department.

Members of the Washington C. H. Fire Department were also on the scene, as there was a large amount of gasoline spilled.

SERVICES FOR the three Fayette County women will be held in the Gerstner-Kinzer Funeral Home between 10 a.m. and 3:30 p.m. Wednesday. Calling hours are scheduled from 3 until 9 p.m. Tuesday.

Services for Mrs. Gray will be held at 10 a.m. Wednesday with the Rev. Brian O. Donahue officiating. Burial will be in Greenlawn Cemetery, Chillicothe.

Born in Clinton County, Mrs. Gray moved here from Chillicothe about a year ago. She was a member of the Immanuel Baptist Church.

She is survived by her father Richard Duffy Sr.; two sons, Shawn and Joshua, and one daughter, Bethany, at home; her maternal grandfather, Thurman Search of Chillicothe; her paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Forna Duffy Sr., of Chillicothe; three brothers, R.E. Duffy Jr., Dan Duffy and Terry Duffy, all of Washington C. H.; and one sister, Miss Debbie Duffy of Washington C. H. Her mother, Mrs. Donna Duffy, preceded her in death.

Services for Mrs. Graham will be held at 2 p.m. Wednesday with the Rev. John Buck officiating. Burial will be in Bloomingburg Cemetery.

Born in Franklin County, Mrs. Graham is survived by her husband Brice; her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Russell (Garnett) Penwell; two sons, David and Tony, and a stepson Brice, at home; four sisters, Mrs. Patty Ratliff of Leesburg, Mrs. Connie Duffy, Hickory Street, Mrs. Pam Sword of Del Rio, Tex., and Mrs. Rhonda Woods of Kingston; five brothers, Russell Penwell, U.S. 35-S, Samuel of Homestead, Fla., Kenneth of Sabina, and Wayne, who resides in Florida.

Services for Mrs. Fessler will be held at 3:30 p.m. Wednesday with the Rev. Harold Shank officiating. Burial will be in Washington Cemetery.

Born in Scioto County, Mrs. Fessler spent most of her life in Fayette County. She was a 1971 graduate of Miami Trace High School.

She is survived by her husband Timothy; her parents Lester Bays and Mrs. Eleanor Lands of Washington C. H.; twin four-year-old sons, Robert and William Dawson; two brothers, Ronald Bays of Sabina and Gary of San Diego, Calif.

Services for Mr. Stott will be held Wednesday. Arrangements are being made by Richard Kelly Funeral Home, Upper Darby, Pa. There will be no services or calling hours locally.

Born in New Jersey, Mr. Stott had resided in Pennsylvania before moving to Sabina about a month ago.

He is survived by his wife Paula; his parents Mr. and Mrs. William R. (Carlene) Stott Jr., of Drexel Hill, Pa.; three children, Robin, Eric and Gregory; as well as several brothers and sisters.

Local arrangements were handled by the Littleton Funeral Home, Sabina.

Services for Mark Dunn were held at 1:30 p.m. Monday in the Gerstner-Kinzer Funeral Home. Burial was in Good Hope Cemetery.

President, Reagan near deadlock

By The Associated Press

Ronald Reagan has moved within 25 committed delegates of President Ford, and some Republican National Committee members are worried that the down-to-the-wire battle may damage the GOP chances against the Democratic nominee in the fall election.

Ford started strong in weekend delegate selections, taking 17 of the 18

selected in Minnesota and pushing him to 1,001 of the 1,130 needed for nomination. But then it was downhill for him as Reagan picked up all 46 delegates chosen in Montana, Idaho and New Mexico.

Those, plus two previously uncommitted Wyoming delegates who switched to Reagan, gave the former California governor 976 committed delegates.

Former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter, who had enough committed delegates last week to win the Democratic presidential nomination, spent the weekend at his home in Plains, Ga. He boosted his delegate total during the weekend to 1,539. To clinch the nomination, 1,505 delegates are needed.

The delegate counts are according to The Associated Press delegate survey.

There are still 98 GOP delegates to be chosen before the party's convention in Kansas City and 182 that are uncommitted.

"I believe on the basis of what has taken place so far, and our own projections, that I will go to Kansas City with enough votes to win on the first ballot," Reagan said.

President Ford, in Puerto Rico for the six-nation summit conference on the world economy, had no immediate comment on the weekend development.

Ford began the weekend leading Reagan by 56 delegates and saw the margin sliced by more than half. Ford led Reagan 984 to 928 committed delegates before the weekend.

The sparring for the GOP nomination is causing some concern among Republican National Committee members, who wrapped up a three-day meeting Saturday in Washington.

Some of the committee members, who declined to be identified, said the party's best chance in November is for Reagan to agree to run as Ford's vice presidential running mate.

led Reagan 984 to 928 committed delegates before the weekend.

Three practice sessions have been scheduled for the Miami Trace High School marching band in preparation for bicentennial celebrations in the Fayette County area.

Aaron Spaulding, Miami Trace High School marching band director, said members are urged to attend practice sessions from 7 until 9 p.m. tonight, Tuesday and July 1 in the high school band room.

The band will be participating in parades in Bloomingburg on July 3 and in New Holland and Washington C.H. on July 4.

Reagan spent the weekend relaxing at his California home.

In an article written for U.S. News & World Report and released Sunday, Ford said a major step toward restoring trust in government could be accomplished by reducing what Americans expect from government.

The President said one great challenge of the future will be "to protect the liberties of individuals and to ensure greater equality of opportunity."

Carter has fund raisers set in Asheville, N.C., Milwaukee, New York, Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, Washington and Chicago this week as part of a three-week fundraising tour. He also says he's doing some thinking about a running mate.

In Lewiston, Maine, Saturday night, Sen. Edmund Muskie, D-Maine, who once sought the presidential nomination himself, said Carter is considering him for the No. 2 spot.

Muskie said others being considered are Sens. Walter Mondale of Minnesota, Aldai Stevenson of Illinois and John Glenn of Ohio.

Carter's campaign treasurer, who has his sights set on raising $1 million in the fundraising tour, said that after the first 10 days "we're very close to being on target."

The President said one great challenge of the future will be "to protect the liberties of individuals and to ensure greater equality of opportunity."

Ten of the 150 members said in interviews that the bitterness cropping up in the Ford-Reagan battle may cause problems since Carter is now down to only one active opponent for the Democratic nomination and is able to spend his time working toward November.

Only California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. is still actively campaigning for the Democratic nomination, and in a Friday night television address he said he would support Carter if the Georgian gets the nomination.

The Republican committeemen were told at their meeting that the GOP is so short of money that it might be forced to go out of business by election time.

Unless Republican officials around the country get busy raising money, GOP Finance Chairman Jeremiah Milbank said, "we may not have the chance to fight back successfully again."

Although Reagan has said he will not accept the No. 2 spot on a ticket with Ford, there were more predictions that he would. Sen. Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn., predicted that Ford will win the Republican nomination and he will need Reagan to bolster the ticket.

"It's my judgment that before it's over Mr. Ford and Mr. Reagan will be on the ticket," Humphrey said.

At Miami Trace High School

South American ninth foreign student

A South American girl will become Miami Trace High School's ninth American Field Service foreign exchange student.

Seventeen-year-old Laura Patricia Ulloa, of Bogota, Colombia, will arrive in Fayette County in August and reside with the Dr. D.R. Junk family, 1973 CCC Highway-E, for the 1976-1977 school year.

Both Laura and her American sister, Kathy, will be seniors at Miami Trace High School.

The attractive 17-year-old South American girl becomes the second American Field Service student hosted by the Junk family. They were the American parents of Greta Havag, of Norway, Miami Trace High School's first foreign exchange student in the 1969-1970 school year.

The dark-haired 5-foot-7 Laura enjoys reading, dancing and sports. She is a member of the Roman Catholic Church.

Laura is one of 10 children (six brothers and three sisters) in the

LAURA PATRICIA ULLOA

Ulloa family. Her father, Luis, 50, is a chemist and petroleum engineer in Colombia's capital city of Bogota. Two of her brothers and her older sister, Maria, 24, were former American Field Service students in the United States.

Following her stay as a foreign exchange student in Fayette County, Laura hopes to spend at least four years in college and pursue a career in human relations.

Her native language is Spanish, but Laura has spent four years reading, writing and speaking English. She also speaks French.

When she departs for Fayette County later this summer, it will mark only the second time Laura has traveled outside her native country. She visited Miami Beach, Fla. for 17 days on a summer vacation in 1975.

Miami Trace High School's foreign exchange students have been Greta Havag, Norway, 1969-1970; Evelyn Baldovina, Philippines, 1970-1971; Gabriel Blanco, Spain, 1971-1972; Claudia Becht, Germany, 1972-1973; Sheila Gordon, Africa, 1973-1974; Bent Hansen, Denmark, 1974-1975; and Dominique Blancke, Belgium and Ross Brown New Zealand, 1975-1976.

Congress to extend tax break

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress is preparing a Bicentennial birthday gift for American taxpayers.

Both the House and Senate are expected to pass a stop-gap measure this week preventing a payroll withholding tax increase from taking effect on Wednesday when tax cuts enacted last year expire.

The stop-gap measure is being rushed through Congress because action on permanent, long-range legislation extending the cuts is nowhere near completion.

If withholding taxes were allowed to rise, it would mean a $245 tax increase for a family of four earning $6,000 a year; a $204 hike for a couple earning $10,000; a $151 increase for a single person earning $10,000; and $180 for a typical four-member family earning $15,000.

Another bill that must be passed before Congress goes on recess Friday for the Fourth of July holiday and Democratic National Convention is an increase in the national debt ceiling.

Without the increase, the Treasury would not be able to borrow operating funds for the government. The House has passed and sent to the Senate a $73-billion increase, to $700 billion.

Final congressional action also may occur this week on a compromise $32.5 billion weapons procurement bill. A House-Senate conference committee approved the measure on Friday.

The compromise authorizes the Pentagon to go ahead with production of the first three prototypes of the B1 bomber.

The Senate had voted to delay a production decision on the B1 until next February so that whoever was elected president in November could make the final decision. But House conferees stood firm in opposing a delay and forced the senators to back down.

In another matter, Democratic House leaders are pressing for completion of work before the recess on a package of changes in House payroll and expense account procedures drafted in the wake of the Capitol Hill sex scandal.

Defying the wishes of the Democratic caucus, the House Administration Committee voted Friday to turn over the revisions to the full House for action instead of having the committee itself put them into effect. Committee Chairman Frank Thompson Jr. of New Jersey said he was confident that Democrats on the panel will reverse the vote and implement the changes.

In an attempt to clear out legislation before the recess, the Senate met in an unusual Saturday session and approved $53-billion in spending measures. They include $43.3 billion for the Environmental Protection Agency, the Department of Housing and Urban Development and related agencies; $6.3 billion for Interior Department programs and $3.4 billion for military construction.

No word from ocean balloonist

NEW YORK (AP) — "We think he is still airborne," a ground support crew member said despite 18 hours without word from the 90-foot helium balloon that Karl Thomas hoped would float him to Paris.

"He is trying to fly it using dead reckoning and his own instincts," crew member Gary Johnson said late Sunday night.

"We are confident he has enough helium and everybody here has enough experience with him to know he never panics and always keeps his cool," Johnson said of the 27-year-old Thomas.

Johnson spoke from the flight's communications center in a 45th-floor luxury apartment overlooking the East River.

Ground crew members said direct contact with the balloon through a high-frequency signal was lost, immediately after Thomas lifted off from the Lakehurst, N.J., Naval Air Station on Friday night.

The ground crew blamed a malfunctioning antenna for the break in communications. The failure also cost Thomas the use of his main navigational system, forcing him to rely on a sextant.

Indirect contact with Thomas through aircraft flying in the vicinity of the balloon was maintained until about 4 a.m. Sunday. At its expected altitude of 3,500 feet, the balloon would have to be within 50 miles of a plane to make contact through the backup system.

The ground crew said they did not know whether the break in communications meant the balloon had lost its backup radio system or whether it just was not within range of aircraft and ships.

In his next-to-last communication early Sunday, Thomas told an airplane pilot he was dropping some ballast to climb up over a storm. His last transmission an hour later gave no hint of having any problems.

The crew estimated that Thomas's position on Sunday night should have been 900 miles due east of Norfolk, Va., and 360 miles south and slightly east of Halifax, Canada.

The weather in the area was reported cloudy with scattered showers.

The U.S. Coast Guard has issued a radio alert asking all ships in the area to monitor an emergency radio frequency for word from Thomas, according to Johnson.

The crew said the best hope of re-establishing communication with the red, white and blue balloon appeared to lie with two ships and three scheduled airline flights traveling a course similar to the balloon's flight pattern. Thomas, an experienced pilot from Troy, Mich., planned to follow the path Charles Lindbergh took across the Atlantic in 1927 in his single-engine "Spirit of St. Louis." Thomas has called his balloon the "Spirit of '76" and is trying to become the first person to fly a balloon across the Atlantic.

Johnson estimated that Thomas could stay aloft as long as 60 days. The 14-foot aluminum gondola, with a huge American flag hanging below, is said to be unsinkable, self-bailing and equipped with a sail.

Appetite downfall for escaped man

CANADIAN, Okla. (AP) — Nobody thought too much about the rotund man in the dirty T-shirt who dropped into Jones' Grocery for a soda and potato chips. That is, until C.A. Pearce saw the man.

Pearce, a guard at the Oklahoma State Penitentiary 17 miles away, immediately recognized Rex Brinlee Jr., a convicted bomb slayer who had escaped from the prison eight days earlier. Just the day before, prison officials had said they had no idea where Brinlee was.

State prison warden Richard Crisp said Brinlee and Pearce recognized each other immediately and "Brinlee suggested they both walk outside and discuss the matter. They walked outside and in the conversation Rex agreed that the proper course of action

Witnesses said that moments later Pearce and Brinlee walked back into the store and called the prison. Brinlee was tired, hungry and eaten up by chiggers.

His quiet capture Sunday in a resort town ended a chapter in one of the biggest manhunts in Oklahoma history that began after seven inmates fled the state prison June 19.

Two other convicted killers are still at large, the targets of a round-the-clock search in rugged countryside near Stigler in eastern Oklahoma. Late Sunday, Gov. David Boren authorized use of four National Guard helicopters for low-level surveillance of the area where cousins Edwin Jones and William Franklin are believed hiding.

Shoppers at Jones' Grocery said they thought Brinlee was a fisherman from nearby Lake Eufaula. He bought a snack with a $1 bill before he saw correctional officer Pearce.

Robert Jones, owner of the grocery in this resort town of about 200 on Lake Eufaula, said there "really wasn't much" to the surrender of Brinlee shortly after 11 a.m. Sunday.

Stocks show little change

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was little changed today, continuing last week's neutral trend. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks declined fractionally in the early going. Gainers and losers ran about even in the over-all tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues. Analysts noted an atmosphere of disappointment and frustration over the market's repeated inability to work its way past the 1,000 level in the Dow.

Legislators in controversy in study of pari mutuels

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — A group of state legislators appointed to make an unbiased study of pari-mutuel horse race betting started its investigation by accepting a free airplane trip to an Ohio race track and a guided tour by businessmen who want to build a similar facility in Indiana.

A pari-mutuel bill passed the last two sessions of the Indiana legislature, but was vetoed by Gov. Otis R. Bowen.

The Indiana Horsemen's Association, which has lobbied unsuccessfully for a law to legalize pari-mutuel betting in Indiana, paid the air fare to Scioto Downs in Columbus, Ohio last Monday.

An association member and Indianapolis businessman, Ralph Wilfong, said he arranged for the legislators to visit Scioto, where he races his horses, because it "is a nice raceway" and is located in an area similar to Indiana where he would like to build his own track.

"Sure I'm interested in building a track," Wilfong said. "But my main interest is to perpetuate the horse industry and I think it's stupid not to take advantage of a big industry that can be brought forth here."

The trip was planned to familiarize members of the legislature's interim racing study committee with the racing industry, committee chairman Craig Campbell, D-Anderson, said.

Only two of the committee's eight lawmakers went to Columbus. Campbell said he and Rep. Richard L. Worden, R-New Haven, were accompanied on the flight by Richard L. Butler of the Legislative Council and Thomas Blanchard, a member of the House staff.

TV Viewing

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The TV comedy "Viva Valdez" has been a flop in the ratings since beginning its summer run May 31 but the fact that it is on the air at all thrills costar Carmen Zapata.

What is significant about it, she feels, is that the half-hour comedy series, which can be viewed on ABC-TV tonight, makes an honest effort to depict the daily lives of an average Mexican-American family.

"The important thing," says Miss Zapata, "is not whether it's picked up or whether I become a star but rather than we have taken a step forward. We are being shown for the first time in the right light, the right image. People are being made aware of who we are and what we are about."

Not that what they are about is anything very different from other people, she emphasizes, and that's her point.

"We're just like everybody else," Miss Zapata says of her fellow Mexican-Americans. "We may talk a little differently and we may eat a few more beans than other people, but basically we are the same. Our problems are just like everybody else's — paying the bills, raising a family and so on."

Until now, the 48-year-old actress says, commercial television either has ignored this large segment of the population or else has tended to portray it unfavorably.

"Viva Valdez" breaks new ground, she feels — not comically but ethnically. And even if it doesn't get picked up by ABC as a midseason replacement next winter — most unlikely, judging by the ratings so far — she is confident many good things will follow in its path.

The series about a Mexican-American family in the Los Angeles barrio, featuring Miss Zapata as the mother, originally was developed for the fall of 1975. ABC couldn't place it then but went ahead and ordered 13 episodes for later. Other new shows were given priority and "Viva Valdez" didn't get on until now.

The delay doesn't bother Carmen. She wasn't exactly sitting around waiting for it to get her work. On the contrary, it's hard to see how she would find time to do the series again if it did get renewed.

More on Marine training

Court-martial proceedings related to the case of Lynn E. McClure, a Marine Corps private who died following severe head injuries incurred in a pugil stick training bout, have brought to light a similar case at the San Diego recruit depot. Another young Marine, Michael J. Holcroft, underwent brain surgery for a head injury, the court was told, and has since been discharged with a 50 per cent medical disability.

One point of interest about this disclosure is that Holcroft was hurt two months before McClure. This brought no discernible change in the training methods, however, as is evidenced by the later bout which sent McClure to the hospital and led to his death.

Indeed there are indications that, far from taking the earlier episode as evidence that training practices needed reform, the Marine Corps sought to cover up the circumstances. The official version was that Holcroft had been hurt in the course of a "highly supervised close-combat pugil stick bout." The press release at the time did not mention a crucially important fact - that the youth was felled by a so-called "free blow."

The depot's physical training instructor, Lt. Larry F. Hickok, told of the "free blow." He testified that Holcroft (in the words of a Los Angeles Times story) "was injured after he was made to stand still, without defending himself, while his opponent struck him with a heavy-padded pugil stick."

The newspaper reports that the training officer previously had told investigators "the practice of awarding 'free blows' was common, despite the fact it was nowhere authorized by training regulations." The story further said: "A free blow was awarded against a recruit who had struck his opponent after a bout

We have pursued this at some length because these episodes illustrate a point of concern to all Americans. It is that the Marine Corps has, over the years, been notoriously reluctant to humanize its training methods.

There is currently much talk of doing this, and appropriate orders have been issued. But it stands on the record, attested to by a Marine Corps spokesman, that the earlier "free blow" case brought no reprimands or other disciplinary action against military personnel. Nor did it bring about reforms which might have prevented the death of Lynn McClure. The lesson is that, whatever it is now saying, the Marine Corps needs to be watched to assure that it brings its training practices into accord with our society's humane standards.

WASHINGTON CALLING...By Marquis Childs

The new Italian government

WASHINGTON — In the cynical view, it is unreasonable to expect Italy to have a viable government. The Italians, so the legend is, are charming, laughter-loving, given to breaking out with operatic arias on any occasion. How foolish to expect them to have a government that can collect taxes, curb deficit spending, correct the balance of payments and restrain the vast subsidies that go to state-owned enterprises.

If any proof of this happy little thesis were needed, it was in the recent Italian elections. Despite the narrow defeat of the Communists, they left the country in exactly the same state of impotence and uncertainty that has prevailed under the revolving door governments of the Christian-Democratic minority.

But the grim fact is that Italy has barely survived in recent years through loans that have come from both international agencies such as the International Monetary Fund and private banks, including several large American financial institutions.

This escape hatch has now been largely closed and a new, uncertain government, if a coalition can be formed, will have to take draconian measures to end the drift toward bankruptcy.

Again the cynic may ask whether it really matters. The answer is that it does, as the position of the West in the Mediterranean has steadily worsened. A bankrupt Italy, unable or unwilling to sustain its role in NATO, would mean one more hole in the western defense line in the Med.

Little realized is the way in which the inheritance from Mussolini's fascism has continued to dominate the Italian economy. The show-off dictator created the corporate state within which government-controlled corporations conducted the major business enterprises.

They were the source not only of corruption and waste, but of gross inefficiency. Mussolini rewarded faithful followers with highly paid jobs in these carefully protected enclaves.

In a searching analysis of Italy's malaise in Foreign Affairs, Guido Carli, governor of the Bank of Italy from 1960 to 1975, points out that today more than 50 per cent of the country's gross national product is accounted for by the state. He calls Italy a "new-corporatist" state.

Businesses threatened with bankruptcy and the loss of jobs are given the protective cover of a government corporation.

The trade unions, and the British offer a parallel here, can bring greater leverage to bear on these state-owned enterprises than they can on the private sector. Railroads, public utilities, steel-making, the national airline, banks, computers, machinery, shipbuilding, textiles and many other sectors are state controlled.

Disparities in income and influence, as between the private and public sectors, and the size of the "parasitic" unproductive areas, Carli says, cannot be reduced to tolerable levels by enlarging the government coalition.

As an election appeal the communists had put forward their "historic compromise" offer under which they would take certain posts along with the Christian-Democrats.

Whether the caretaker Prime Minister Aldo Moro will succeed in forming a new coalition government without Communist participation is questionable. Even if he succeeds, his first task will be to try to find outside help to relieve the crushing burden of debt and the ever-increasing deficit. With a rate of inflation running at one time at 20 per cent, this will not be easy.

Presumably Moro, one of the tired faces in and out of the prime minister's office, will represent Italy at the summit conference called by President Ford in Puerto Rico.

While he may be congratulated because his party outdistanced the Communists by five percentage points, despite the heavy Red gains, he is likely to find rough going when he appeals for economic help. Nor can he supply any plan for cutting through the quagmire of welfarism and corporatism that weighs down the Italian economy.

The NATO naval base at Naples is of primary importance. With Greece half in and half out and Turkey closing down U.S. listening posts, it is a focal point for defense of the Mediterranean littoral.

The influence of Washington and the Vatican undoubtedly contributed to the fact that the Christian-Democrats came out in the lead. But the outcome did not mean a new and vigorous government or a solution to the economic crisis.

Ohio Perspective

Ruling could mandate growth in big cities

CLEVELAND (AP) — The effect of community-controlled zoning as upheld by the U.S. Supreme Court a week ago could lead to an antigrowth policy in the suburbs and force more development in big cities such as Cleveland.

That's the opinion of various planners, reformers and neighborhood leaders who oppose the exclusionary practices of the suburbs but seek growth in declining city neighborhoods.

The court upheld an Eastlake, Ohio ordinance requiring voter approval of zoning changes and land use, perhaps setting the stage unintentionally for a pattern of blocked suburban growth.

"This is not a planned strategy, it is merely an accident," said Cleveland Planning Director Norman Krumholz. "If that kind of antigrowth policy becomes widespread, it would tend to raise demand in the city."

Opponents of voter-controlled zoning say it is designed to keep out minority groups and the poor, but they and others point out that it could also involve projects politicians may approve but voters would reject.

Examples could be a shopping center residents of a suburb might think would upset the quiet of their town or a high-rise apartment building suburban voters may perceive as a strain on city services and a drain on their taxes.

Many of those projects would be welcome in central cities. But the decision may also open the way for city neighborhoods to control building and land use.

"If anything would stop the expansion of the suburban sprawl, it would be a plus," said Gale Cincotta, president of the National Peoples Action, a neighborhoods coalition in Chicago.

The Eastlake ordinance provides that the entire city can vote on zoning and land use matters approved by City Council, so it is unclear whether smaller parts of big cities, such as wards, could exercise the same control.

One problem is that residents of a city neighborhood may not have as much control as the residents of suburbs.

Dear Abby:

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Don't show and you won't tempt

DEAR ABBY: I read the letter from the young girl who had been used by her father for sexual pleasure, and I wondered if the girl's mother had provided tight fitting, revealing clothes for her beautiful daughter.

When in missionary work in Africa, my wife and I were at a roadside marketplace when a very shapely, young, scantily clad Belgian girl walked by. An African workman remarked to his companion, "Dimba tshe paka landja!" We knew the language; he said, "The entire body is right outside!"

If mothers and daughters conspire to draw the attentions of men to their beautiful young bodies, a few fathers cannot help but be overcome by the desires constantly aroused in their own homes. When God-fearing parents advocate modesty, they are not being prudish they are being realistic and practical.

Your comment is true; the father is "sick." But there is a sickness in our society that may have contributed much to that father's malignancy.

WHITEHALL UNITED METHODIST CHURCH
COLUMBUS, OHIO

DEAR ABBY: You've had several letters in your column from young girls who have been sexually abused by their fathers, stepfathers or "funny uncles." But I've never seen a letter from a young boy who had been used in that way by a female relative.

I was that kind of a victim until I was nearly 10 years old, but I was bribed and threatened so I never told anyone.

Abby, please continue to alert all parents to keep their eyes open where their children are concerned. And tell young people not to be afraid to report such improper activities to a teacher, a trusted adult friend, relative or even the local police. Also, the Children's Protective Society and the county welfare department can help.

MY SISTER'S VICTIM
DEAR VICTIM: I have, and I shall continue to do so. This problem is far more widespread than most people suspect.

DEAR ABBY: You read so much about unwed mothers who give up their children. Well, what about unwed fathers who would have given their right arm to raise the baby their mother didn't want?

I am the father of two children born out of wedlock, a boy and a girl, who were given up for adoption to strangers. These children were half mine, yet I had no say in the matter.

I offered marriage to both these girls and was turned down. They weren't teenagers, either. One was 21 and the other was 24.

I love children, Abby, and as a single parent I could have given both my children as good a home as their mother could have, if she had wanted them. I can cook, sew and keep house as good as any woman can, but the courts don't consider a father's rights. Why?

STILL SINGLE AT 35
DEAR SINGLE: You may live long enough to see the courts make some decisions in favor of the unwed father. It's being worked on, as it well should be.

Today In History

Today is Monday, June 28th, the 180th day of 1976. There are 186 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in History:
On this date in 1914, the heir to the throne of Austria-Hungary, Archduke Francis Ferdinand, was assassinated at Sarajevo, Bosnia. It was the spark that set off World War I.

On this date:
In 1788, the Revolutionary War Battle of Monmouth, N.J., took place. Molly Pitcher's aid to colonial troops made her a heroine in American history.

In 1838, Britain's Queen Victoria was crowned.

In 1919, the Versailles Treaty was signed in France after World War I.

In 1941, guerrilla warfare against the Nazis began in Yugoslavia during World War II.

In 1950, in the Korean War, North Korean soldiers captured the South Korean capital of Seoul.

In 1967, King Hussein of Jordan met with President Lyndon Johnson in Washington to discuss Jordan's plight after the Israeli victory in the Six-Day War.

Ten years ago: U.S. troops began leaving the Dominican Republic in the first step toward dissolving an Inter-American peace force.

Five years ago: The U.S. Supreme Court struck down state aid for parochial schools as unconstitutional.

One year ago: A number of people were killed in Beirut, Lebanon, as fighting between leftists and rightists spread to new parts of the city.

Thought for today: The carnage and suffering which war entails are terrible to contemplate, and constitute an irresistible argument in favor of arbitration — John Lubbock, English astronomer and mathematician, 1803-1865.

Sabina Friends Church setting for Rinehart-Reese marriage

The Sabina Friends Church was the setting Saturday for the marriage of Miss Rachel N. Rinehart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Rinehart, Rt. 2, New Vienna, and Richard J. Reese, son of Mr. and Mrs. James L. Reese of Sabina.

The Rev. Tom Applegate of Wilmington, performed the double-ring ceremony at 2:30 p.m. before an altar enhanced with two vases of spring flowers, and two candelabra. Mrs. Ellen Reese, organist, and Mrs. Sherry Rinehart, vocalist, presented wedding selections prior to the ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal length double-ring gown of white satin with lace bodice and high neckline, fashioned and made by her and her grandmother. The A-line styled gown was accented with lace trim at the neckline and empire waist. The long full sleeves ended in lace cuffs. Her illusion veil edged in wide lace, was waist-length and held by a crown of lace. Her colonial bouquet was of shasta daisies, greenery, and streamers tied in love knots.

Mrs. Steve Wilson of Hillsboro, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. She wore a long blue flocked polyester crepe gown with short puff sleeves, empire waist, and square neckline, and carried a bouquet of blue daisies, miniature carnations and baby's breath. The other attendants, Miss Lou

Ann Mahaffey of New Vienna, Mrs. Gwen Gaskins of Sabina, and Mrs. Debbie Hicks of New Vienna, wore gowns fashioned like that of the matron of honor, but Miss Mahaffey's was yellow and the other two wore pink. Their bouquets were like the honor attendant's.

A reception followed in the church social room. Hostesses were Mrs. Doris Hilderbrand, Mrs. Jean Rinehart, Mrs. Ruthella Mongold, Mrs. Albertine Cramer and Mrs. Dee Buckley.

When the couple left for a wedding trip, the new Mrs. Reese was wearing a green polyester dress with matching jacket and a corsage of daisies. Upon their return, they will reside at 145 E. Lewis St., Sabina.

The bride, a 1974 graduate of East Clinton High School, is employed at the Clinton County National Bank and Trust Company, Sabina. Her husband, a 1973 EC graduate, attended Lincoln Technical Institute, and is employed at Mac Tool in Washington C.H.

Witnesses hear windup speaker

RICHFIELD, Ohio (AP) — Since confidence in human institutions is at an all time low, Dr. A.D. Schroeder told the final day of Jehovah's Witnesses District Assembly here Sunday, only a religious attitude can undo this.

Schroeder of New York City told about 14,400 at the Richfield Coliseum that "young people see the jungle the world has become and many are disgusted with it and are afraid."

He added that those disgusted with corruption and misery should turn to God. "The question remains is whether you want to serve Him or not," he said.

Raymond Hubbell, born in Urbana, Ohio in 1879, wrote "Poor Butterfly" and a number of operettas.

PICNIC FASHION TIP is serving soup outdoors with popular picnic foods. Idaho Potato and Cheese Soup is easy to make with packaged hash brown potatoes, and it travels well in a vacuum bottle to serve piping hot at the picnic spot.

Picnics are more fun with homemade potato soup

When a picnic is "in the soup" it means that it's the latest style. People are taking homemade soups to picnics and enjoying them a lot. Soups go great with sandwiches, hot dogs or hamburgers and they fill in the corners created by outdoor hunger.

Summer is the time to make the most of convenience products to get out of the kitchen fast, and packaged instant potato products are one of the best friends a cook can find at the supermarket. Use them often to cut down work in the summer kitchen.

IDAHO POTATO AND CHEESE SOUP
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1/4 cup chopped onion
1/4 cup finely chopped green pepper
2 tablespoons flour
7 cups milk
1/4 teaspoon dry mustard
2 chicken bouillon cubes
1 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 cup (4 ounces) shredded Cheddar cheese

1 package (6 ounces) Idaho hash brown potatoes
2 tomatoes, peeled and chopped
In large saucepan melt butter over medium heat, add onion and green pepper, and cook until vegetables are tender. Blend in flour; stir in milk, dry mustard, bouillon cubes, salt, pepper and lemon juice. Cook, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens and comes to a boil. Stir in cheese and potatoes; cook covered 10 minutes. Serve with chopped tomatoes sprinkled on each serving.

YIELD: 8 cups; 6 servings.

COLD POTATO AND CUCUMBER SOUP

Idaho instant mashed potatoes for 8 servings
Water
Milk
1 cup additional milk
2 medium cucumbers, pared, seeded and cut into cubes
2 teaspoons chopped chives
1 tablespoon lemon juice
3/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper

Heat liquids called for in package directions for preparing mashed potatoes, pour into electric blender container, and sprinkle with mashed potato flakes. Cover and process until blended, add remaining ingredients and process until smooth. Chill several hours.

YIELD: 4 cups.

Ohio had 60 generals and 800,000 men and women in uniform in World War II.

BEATING THE HEAT—The colts pictured above found the weekend heat made for pure laziness but people who seemed more energetic managed to get to Deer Creek Reservoir before they relaxed in the water or on the sand. Last week's rains reinstated four of the eight lost feet of water in the reservoir whose shoreline previously began at the buoys and was waist level as shown on the girl in the second photo for the weekend swimmers. The weatherman who predicts additional precipitation for this evening and Tuesday, will further aid Deer Creek's cause if he is correct. Temperatures will range in the upper 70s and lower 80s. ## No more fun at Kentucky post office

MENTOR, Ky. (AP) — The government has taken all the enjoyment out of going to the post office in Mentor, Ky. In fact, the government has taken not only the enjoyment, but also the post office from this small town 25 miles south of Cincinnati.

"There are no tobacco chewers on courthouse benches in this town," said Edna Gusney, "just us women who stop by the post office to gossip every morning. Don't know what's gonna happen to us now."

Mrs. Gusney, not one to give up the gossip just because the post office closed last Saturday, made a suggestion to the owner of a nearby convenience food store.

"Mary, you're just going to have to put up a big ol' umbrella out front here, serve tea and all us girls will get together just like we used to," she said.

The post office in Mentor was opened at about the time that the railroad came to town, but now the fourth-class post office is suffering the fate of eight others in the Cincinnati Postal District's Ohio-Kentucky-Indiana region which have been, or are scheduled to be shut down this summer.

Many of the 70 families who used the post office are not too happy about their new postal address: "California, Ky." They explain that there is a rivalry between the two towns and add that California is little more than a town of mobile homes.

Even their post office, located 2.5 miles from Mentor, is in a trailer.

Fay Corbin, one of the many elderly

people who made the daily short walk from home to the post office to pick up the mail knows where the blame should be placed.

"Bureaucrats," the 85-year-old woman concluded simply.

She can recall when her father served as postmaster during the 1920s. Then, her dad would hang bags of mail over the tracks and when the daily passenger trains came by, a shirt-sleeved man leaned out from the mail car to latch the pouch with a hook.

"Sometimes, he missed," she recalled.

The government didn't miss the Mentor post office this time. By closing the office, about $12,000 a year will be saved, Cincinnati postal officials say. The post office generates only about $4,000 a year in revenue from stamp and money order sales, according to postal officials.

A rural carrier route will be more efficient, they add. Mrs. Gusney and her friends disagree.

"Most of us have been placed at the end of Wilbur Wagoner's (carrier) route," said Mrs. Gusney. "How can we gossip in the morning when we won't receive our mail 'til three or four in the afternoon?"

Swine flu problems mounting

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Public health officials who will administer the swine flu vaccine say they need more federal help and may ask for voluntary donations to pay for the nationwide immunization program.

Dr. J. Brett Lazar, president of the National Association of County Health Officials, said public health doctors throughout the country appear to support the program but are concerned about the cost in manpower and money. County officials estimate federal grants will pay about one-sixth of the cost to local governments of administering the vaccine. The federal government is paying for the vaccine.

County officials, meeting as part of the annual convention of the National Association of Counties, also said they feared liability problems similar to those faced by the vaccine's manufacturers. A convention committee passed a resolution requesting that county and state governments receive a federal guarantee against loss similar to liability insurance

Business booms in fireworks

HUDSON, Ohio (AP) — Business literally is booming for fireworks maker James Sorgi as the nation prepares to celebrate its 200th birthday next weekend.

Sorgi says sales are about 40 per cent better than last year, even though tighter government restrictions on the shipping of fireworks have forced him to cancel 50 orders and turn down about 100 others.

He estimates will do more than $200,000 in business over the July 4 weekend.

John Dean called swinger in square White House

KANSAS CITY (AP) — John Dean has been characterized by H. R. Haldeman, former chief of staff under President Richard M. Nixon, as the "hotdog swinger in the square Nixon White House."

Haldeman, who resigned from the White House staff in 1973 during the Watergate investigation said, in a copyright series distributed by Universal Press Syndicate of Kansas City and co-authored with columnist Joe Scott, that Dean would never have gotten his job as counsel to Nixon if he had been given a routine White House check.

"I recruited him but never saw his FBI dossier," Haldeman said. "I assumed that Dean had been cleared at Justice. My former staff would be amused to know that, regarding Dean, I violated my own cardinal rule laid down for all subordinates — 'Don't assume.'"

In the fourth installment in the five-part series, Haldeman said if he had seen Dean's dossier, "allegations about a conflict of interest charge, however slight, involving his prior affiliation with a law firm would have been enough to concern me about the smoke, whether or not there was any fire."

Haldeman said "... Dean's relationship with the President, despite suggestions to the contrary, did not exist until Watergate, and only then as a project officer."

Three hurt on Snow Hill Road

Four injury mishaps probed over weekend

Four accidents involving injuries occurred throughout Fayette County over the weekend.

Two non-county residents, one an off-duty sheriff's deputy, are listed in "satisfactory" condition in Good Samaritan Hospital, Cincinnati, following a 3:45 p.m. Saturday accident, Ohio Highway Patrol officers reported.

A car driven by Randall L. Cline, 23, of Wilmington, was westbound on the Snow Hill Road, when he reportedly failed to stop for a stop sign at the Greenfield-Sabina Road intersection. He entered the intersection, and collided with a car driven by Tommy R. McFinley, 20, of Greenfield, which had been southbound on the Greenfield-Sabina Road.

According to Ohio Highway Patrol officers, the two cars slid off the roadway and struck a utility pole and fence posts. They reported that Fayette County sheriff's deputies and members of the Sabina Fire Department assisted in traffic control and fire prevention.

Charges against Cline, a deputy with the Clinton County Sheriff's Department, are pending, Ohio Highway Patrol officers stated. Both cars were demolished.

A passenger in the Cline auto, Mike J. McClary, 18, of Sabina, was also injured. He is listed in "satisfactory" condition at University Hospital, Columbus.

The Washington C.H. Police Department reported two accidents involving injury, both occurring Saturday afternoon.

A bicycle driven by Jeffery S. Huysman, 13, of 1040 Golfview Drive, reportedly pulled from in front of 910 Leesburg Avenue into the path of a car proceeding southbound on Leesburg Avenue. The car was driven by William E. Neu, 58, of Hillsboro.

The resulting collision sent the Huysman youth, and another boy on the bicycle, Eric L. Finney, 11, of 1041 Golfview Drive, to Fayette County Memorial Hospital. Both were treated for abrasions and released. Both vehicles were slightly damaged, and charges are pending against the Huysman youth, police officers stated. The accident occurred at 5:35 p.m. Saturday.

A motorcycle driven by Donald E. Markley, 46, CCC Highway-W, had been northbound on Circle Avenue when he apparently failed to yield the right of way and collided with another car in the Court Street intersection. The second car was driven by Ralph Taylor, 56, of Leesburg, and it had been eastbound on W. Court Street. The accident occurred at 7:02 p.m. Saturday.

Markley was taken to Fayette County Memorial Hospital, where he was treated for abrasions and released. Police officers cited him with driving while under the influence of alcohol and failing to yield to an oncoming vehicle. Both vehicles were moderately damaged.

Fayette County sheriff's deputies reported that a South Solon woman was injured in a 4:45 p.m. Saturday accident.

Traveling west on CCC Highway-W, a pickup truck driven by Barry O. Thompson, 29, of South Solon, turned left into a private drive located about a half mile west of the Jamison Rad.

Thompson apparently failed to yield to a car driven by Paul A. Manuel, 48, of Wilmington, and both cars were moderately damaged as a result of the collision. Manuel had been eastbound on U.S. 22.

A passenger in the Thompson truck, Nancy E. Thompson, 30, of South Solon was treated for a sprained spine at Fayette County Memorial Hospital, and released.

A 7:25 p.m. Saturday one car collision on Ohio 753 was also investigated by sheriff's deputies.

POLICE

SUNDAY, 2:33 a.m. - Myron Greene, Greenfield, told police officers he was talking to a "Mary Sanders" when he backed from her parking space, struck and slightly damaged his car, and left the scene of the accident. The mishap occurred along Wilson Street, just north of East Paint Street.

12:10 a.m. - Westbound on Washington Avenue, a car driven by Mark J. Hartley, 23, of 2070 Rowe Ging Road, attempted to pass a vehicle ahead, and upon returning to his lane of travel, allegedly struck a car ahead. The second car, also westbound on Washington Avenue, was driven by Canova Wilson Jr., 45, of Rt. 2,

Washington C.H., and it was moderately damaged.

The accident occurred just west of Clearview Avenue, and Hartley was cited by police officers with reckless operation and leaving the scene of an accident. His car was moderately damaged.

SATURDAY, 12:45 p.m. - A car driven by William C. Vance, 18, of 320 Bereman St., was approaching the Washington Avenue junction when it failed to slow sufficiently and struck a car ahead in the rear. Vance had been southbound on Elm Street.

The second car, which had been waiting for traffic on Elm Street, was driven by Toni L. Long, 29, of 622 Washington Ave. Both cars sustained moderate damage, and Vance was charged with failure to maintain an assured clear distance ahead.

Court orders payments to holders in REITs

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — The terms of an out-of-court settlement between 9000 stockholders who claim they were defrauded and a real estate trust were approved Friday by U.S. District Court Judge Carl B. Rubin.

The judge agreed to the settlement under which investors in Ohio Real Estate Investment Co. would be paid 89 cents a share; those of Ohio Real Estate Equities Co. would get 57 cents a share and owners of defunct U.S. Capitol Corp. stock will get $2 a share.

The companies are in receivership, but only U.S. Capitol Corp. is out of business. The other two firms will pay the judgment to stockholders in the form of a dividend. Stockholders in those two firms will continue to own the stock and collect dividends.

Columbus lawyer Denis J. Murphy, representing the stockholders, told the judge that his clients would not be served by a ruling in which the companies were forced to pay large damages because the companies don't have the money. The dividend payments were the best the stockholders could hope to get, he said.

"There's a difference between the best possible result and the best result possible," Rubin said in agreement.

During the hearings, attorneys for the stockholders outlined misdeeds they claimed to have discovered on the part of trustees of two of the firms. They claimed trustees invested in their ventures, made loans to friends and received kickbacks.

The original investment price of shares in the two still-viable firms has dropped by more than half, but Robert Dameron, court receiver in the case, said the companies now are making a profit.

Two other weekend fires checked

Firemen assist in area crashes

Washington C.H. firemen assisted law enforcement officers during two fatal car crashes over the weekend, and checked two other incidents involving a trash fire and automobile fire.

During the 11:50 p.m. Friday car collision in which Mark O. Dunn, 15, of 7268 Ohio 753-S, was killed, firemen assisted in rescue operations and prevented a large quantity of spilled gasoline from igniting.

Michael A. Nunley, 16, of Sabina, the driver of that car, is listed in "fair" condition in Fayette County Memorial Hospital.

Once again, as bodies were removed from the wreckage of the 11:30 a.m. Saturday accident which claimed four lives, firemen assisted law enforcement officers, and prevented a potential fire from occurring as a result of leaking gasoline.

Both traffic accidents occurred within a 1,000 feet of each other, along Ohio 41-N, about a half mile north of Hickory Lane.

A trash fire on the Ester Kellerberger residence, 118 Grand Ave., was doused with water by firemen at 10:30 a.m. Saturday. Firemen said that children playing with matches might have been the cause.

A fire in an automobile belonging to Michael Smith, 477 Bloomingburg-New Holland Road, was extinguished with carbon dioxide by firemen at 1:14 p.m. Saturday. The minor fire took place in front of 1304 N. North Street.

Flames in the engine area were caused by an automobile backfire, firemen said.

ROTC cadet on five-week summer duty assignment

A 1975 graduate of the Washington Senior High School Junior Naval ROTC program is currently serving a five-week tour aboard the USS Okinawa at San Diego, Calif.

A three-year participant in the Washington Senior High School program, Rory L. Souther is one of 93 Miami University Naval ROTC cadets on summer duty assignment with the U.S. Navy.

Souther left in mid-June to board the USS Okinawa, which was scheduled for sea duty in the Pacific. Repairs to the ship which were scheduled for completion have been delayed, however. It appears he will spend the entire five-week tour in port.

The son of William Souther, 787 Duke Plaza, he will be a sophomore at Miami University this fall and is seriously considering a military career.

Tall ships arrive to help celebrate U.S. bicentennial

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — They arrived in the harbor to cheers, applause and raucous whistles, the 42 young British women who sailed 632 miles of the Atlantic to help the United States celebrate the 200th birthday of its breakaway from the crown.

Their voyage aboard the schooner Sir Winston Churchill ended Sunday in this crowded, festive port where tall masts once again line the docks along the colonial brick buildings of the waterfront.

On Thursday, Newport will serve as the starting point for a procession of more than 200 sailing ships and smaller vessels which will parade up New York Harbor on July 4 to celebrate the nation's Bicentennial.

The stars will be 19 "Tall Ships," most of them classic square-riggers with masts rising 150 feet or more above the deck. The Churchill is smaller and lighter than the square-riggers, but its all-woman crew made it the star among more than 10 British entries which raced here from Bermuda on the last leg of a transatlantic competition that began nearly two months ago in Plymouth, England.

"It's rough work, but you get by," said Penelope MacGregor Williams, 17, of Sussex. "It's done me a world of good already. Toughened me up. I was lazy. Here you're told to do something, you do it. No buts about it."

The women took over in Bermuda from a male crew that had sailed from England under sponsorship of the Sail Training Association of Great Britain, owner of the ship.

Throughout the race which ended Saturday night with the Churchill five miles short of the finish line, the crew was supervised by a predominantly male complement of officers and petty officers led by Capt. Patrick Collis, a former Royal Navy training officer.

Miss Williams, like many in the crew, had done no extensive ocean sailing before the race started June 20. The young women, aged 16 to 25, had practiced climbing the rigging, which is five stories high, at docksides in Bermuda. Most of the first-timers admitted to terror.

Hoosier student sets world mark

UNION CITY, Ind. (AP) — During the last two weeks, Chuck Castle has had a lot of sleepless nights. And he wouldn't have had it any other way.

The 15-year-old sophomore at Mississinewa Valley High School has broken the world's record for staying awake.

Castle completed his sleepless marathon of 289 hours, 31 minutes Saturday morning, adding a little more than nine hours to the previous record listed in the Guinness Book of World Records.

North Carolina fair officials tour here

A contingent of 21 persons representing the North Carolina State Fair and various other county fairs of that state visited the Fayette County Fairgrounds on Saturday.

Arriving early afternoon, the group had previously viewed four other county fairs during a two-day trip throughout Ohio. The busload of North Carolina fair officials had been traveling to the different fairs as a part of an effort to improve fairs in their home state, according to Eddie Kirk, president of the Fayette County Agricultural Society (county fair board).

Kirk said the North Carolinians toured the fairgrounds for two hours, while the monthly Central Ohio Indian Relic and Gun Show and companion flea market was taking place.

"They were very impressed with the parking facilities and buildings," Kirk stated.

Larceny cases checked

Washington C.H. police officers investigated two reported larcenies over the weekend.

A baseball glove and bat, valued at $50, and two pair of shoes valued at $50 belonging to Stanley Perry, 24, of Jeffersonville, were reported stolen from his car as it was parked in Eymann

Park between 11 a.m. and 10 p.m. Sunday.

William E. Brinkles, 37, of 311 McElwain St., told police officers that a number of old coins whose face value totaled $60 were taken from his residence sometime between 6 and 10:30 p.m. Friday. The home had been unlocked, he said.

Office to serve Fayette County

OYC to open Chillicothe facility

COLUMBUS — Willaim K. Willis, director of the Ohio Youth Commission, announced that the opening of the agency's newest regional classification and assignment office will be held July 6 in Chillicothe.

Gary L. Faram has been appointed the regional classification and assignment administrator of the South Central Ohio Classification and Assignment Regional Office.

"The function of the regional classification and assignment office is to facilitate the admission of children to the OYC and to assist the court and other community agencies in diverting youngsters from the criminal justice system," said Willis.

The South Central Classification and Assignment Office will be located in the new South Central Ohio regional Juvenile Detention Center, five miles west of Chillicothe.

Willis expressed his thanks to Fayette County Probate-Juvenile Judge Rollo M. Marchant and others who helped to make the sixth such area office possible. The director said, "The seven-county area being served by this regional office will help to facilitate these classifications and assignments such as has never been possible before. We will have an expert in classification and assignment within traveling distances to the courts and law enforcement agencies in Fayette,

Highland, Jackson, Pickaway, Pike, Ross and Vinton counties on a daily basis."

Fagan has been an education specialist with the Athens Regional Office since June, 1973. Prior to his working for the OYC, Fagan was head teacher at Waterloo Elementary and Junior High School, Athens County, from 1972 to 1973, and taught at Athens High School from 1971 to 1972. He is a 1971 graduate of Ohio University in Athens where he received a bachelor of science degree in education, and later in 1975, his masters in education in the area of guidance and counseling.

Language bank aids moms

CLEVELAND (AP) — How do you communicate with a woman in labor who only speaks a little-known foreign language?

That's one of the situations which confronts 215 volunteers of the Language Bank of Cleveland. Together, these volunteers can talk in 43 languages and in the ethnically-diverse Cleveland, that's a good start.

The story about the pregnant woman was told by Joseph Martanovic, one of the volunteers, who was called to the hospital's emergency room.

Although he said he forgot what the obscure language was, Martanovic said he translated the doctor's instructions phonetically to a nurse who then was able to instruct the woman in labor.

The 24-hour service provided by the language bank was started in 1974 after a study found that more than 140,000 persons here speak languages other than English. Cleveland itself has a population of just under 700,000.

Using money from the Junior League of Cleveland, the George Gund Foundation and contributions from business and other civic groups, the volunteers began answering requests from hospitals, airports, port officials, police, bus stations, taxi companies, doctors and even the FBI.

When a foreigner calls the language bank, an answering service contacts volunteers who set up a three-way conversation.

Although Eastern European languages are popular in Cleveland, the bank sometimes has problems getting volunteers who speak languages from other nations.

Anyone know Finnish, Turkish or Samoan?

Our America

A STRANGE WAY OF LIVING

Pauline Thornton

Life was hard for the Ohio settler in the early 1800's. On this point, all first-hand observers agree.

The typical frontier dwelling was a one-room log house with a rough puncheon floor and walls chinked up with mortar. Often a hole in the roof served for a chimney until one could be constructed.

"It may seem a strange way of living now," William C. Howells says of his boyhood home in the Ohio Valley, "but it was very common for the log cabins to have no windows whatever." The Howells family simply left their front door open for light and ventilation, closing it only at night or in extreme cold.

Although much of the housing was crude, river travel and improved roads made the Ohio Valley an accessible region. This was not true of northern Ohio settlements in the Western Reserve. The observations of travellers John Melish and Dr. Zerach Hawley indicate that most settlements in the Reserve remained pretty isolated until after the 1820's.

When the young Scotsman, John Melish, left Canton on horseback for an inspection trip of the Western Reserve, he soon found the roads almost impassable. A trip from Stow to Hudson was out of the question in the rainy October of 1811, so Melish had to forfeit his chance to see Hudson's fine frame houses.

What he did see were settlements scattered along some of the worst roads in America, and settlers suffering from unusually severe attacks of fever and the ague.

Many Reserve settlers did not yet have their crops well-established. Melish observed that much of the soil was "third rate," good for growing only enormous pumpkins. According to Melish, "The people live a good deal upon pumpkin pies."

Melish found most settlers living in primitive conditions. He reports of one hospitable family who shared their meal of bad potatoes, stewed with pork and "swimming in butter." They also shared their windowless, unchinked, and fireless house on a cold October night.

Although Melish thought Lake Erie "sublime," he was appalled to find that Cleveland was a "paltry village" and described the people there as "pale and dejected." In 1811, Cleveland consisted of only "16 dwellings, 2 taverns, 2 stores, and 1 school."

The next man who chronicled his travels in the Reserve was Dr. Zerach

Hawley. His journal records travels made from September, 1820 to August, 1821. Ten years had not witnessed much improvement.

Like Melish, Hawley rode through the mud, his horse stumbling. He found large families, even prominent ones, still living in one-room houses and thought the effects of such intimacy were "immoral."

As for domestic appliances, even the families who originally brought glassware, dishes and pots from Connecticut had few remaining in 1821. Hawley was entertained by a family which had resided in the Reserve for seventeen years. "They had one knife and one fork which they gave to the guest. The others ate with improvised implements — a shoe knife or an old razor blade with a wooden handle." Hawley said that the family had not glasses and that all ate from a single large dish in the middle of the table.

Since money was scarce and shoes expensive, many people went barefoot. Some women began to dock their hair square behind, leaving it about six inches long, and giving them what Hawley calls an "uncouth and forbidding" appearance. The art of graceful living and even the art of conversation were disappearing.

Manners were becoming crude. Men failed to remove their hats when they entered a house, and women minutely inspected their neighbor's furniture. Hawley was perhaps a bit fastidious, but it is impossible to deny that the removal from civilization had its debasing effects.

Reports of the first twenty-five years of settlement present a rather bleak picture of life in Ohio. But the living improved markedly in the 1830's, along with improved transportation and increased trade.

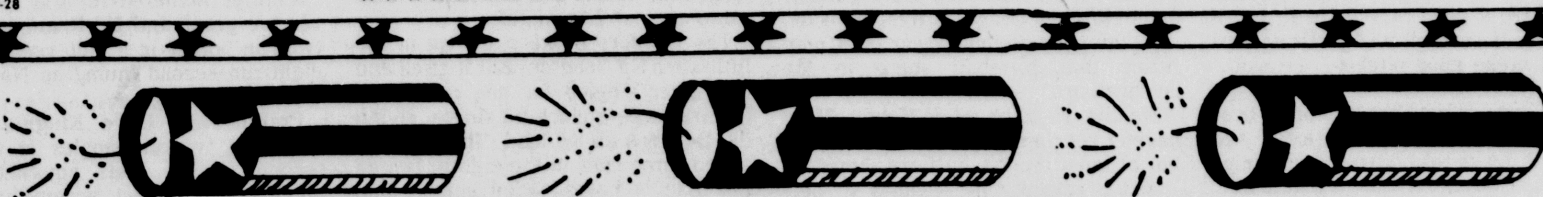

D. Griffiths, an Englishman who spent two years in the "New Settlements in Ohio," documents the prosperity of at least some Ohioans in the 1830's:

"We know nothing of hardships now to what some of our neighbors did when they came on twenty-five years ago. Now we have our grist and saw mills, our furnaces, and forges, and stores and villages in abundance. Ohio is a rising country, there's no mistake about it."

Ninth-inning single earns twinbill split for Post 25

Jeff Elliott started the game on the mound Sunday and finished it nine innings late at the plate as Washington C.H. Post 25 took the first game of a Legion twinbill with Chillicothe Post 757.

Elliott pitched the first five innings giving up four runs on five hits before being pulled in favor of John Ackley, who was followed on the mound by Stu Foster and Jack James.

The three relievers shut out Post 757 in the final four innings giving up just two hits and striking out five. But, it was Elliott who came back to win it even though James was credited with the decision.

With score tied at four apiece in the bottom of the ninth, Jeff DeWeese led off with a single, his third hit of the game. Allan Conner sacrificed the Post 25 catcher to second and Mark Fisher's infield hit moved him to third.

With DeWeese representing the winning run on third with one out, Elliott came to the plate. He was hitless in four trips, but on that fifth visit he lined the first pitch over the third baseman's head giving Post 25 a 5-4 win.

Chillicothe had taken an early 4-0 lead scoring three runs on two hits in the fourth and adding a single tally in the fifth.

Back to back doubles by Post 757 and two squeeze bunts produced the first three runs. After two errors and a single in the fifth, the Chillicothe team held a four run lead and was threatening to break the game open.

Conner ended the threat by robbing a

Post 757 hitter of a single in shallow center field and pegging a throw to first to complete a double play.

Post 25 got on the scoreborad in the seventh. Ackley led off with a walk and John Bakenhester went in to pinch run. Rex Coe followed with a single and moved to second as Bakenhester drew a throw to third.

DeWeese took advantage of the two men in scoring position and drove them home with a single to right field. Conner followed with a single driving 757's starter Mark Graham from the mound.

Mark Fisher drove home DeWeese with a fielders choice, but Post 25's threat ended when Conner was thrown out trying to advance to third.

The play led to some protesting by Post 25 manager Ron Helmick, who claimed the infield umpire was out of position and shouldn't have made the call. A repeat of the play followed in the eighth inning after Post 25 had tied the game. This time the protesting got more heated and both Helmick and coach John Sanderson were ejected from the game.

James led off the eighth with a single, but was forced at second on Tim Cleaver's grounder. Jeff Estep was sent to hit for Neil Spears and Cleaver moved into scoring position by stealing second. The Post 25 shortstop appeared to be out, but the umpire ruled he was not tagged.

Then, Estep's grounder to the shortstop was misplayed moving Cleaver to third. He came home on a grounder by Zack Adams tying the score. Estep was thrown out going to third on the play, and that led to the ejections.

Adams had pinch hit for Foster, who retired Post 757 in order with two strikeouts in the eighth. James moved to the mound. He gave up a leadoff single, but retired the next three men setting up Elliott's ninth inning heroics.

In the second game Sunday, Post 25 couldn't pull out another come from behind victory as Chillicothe earned a split with a 3-1, seven-inning victory.

James started the second game for Post 25. He struck out the side in the first, but sandwiched between strike outs were a double and a single giving Post 757 a 1-0 lead.

Chillicothe added another run in the second on a walk and two singles. James stayed out of trouble until the sixth wehn the first three Post 757 batters reached base. Helmick brought Foster in with the bases loaded and no outs.

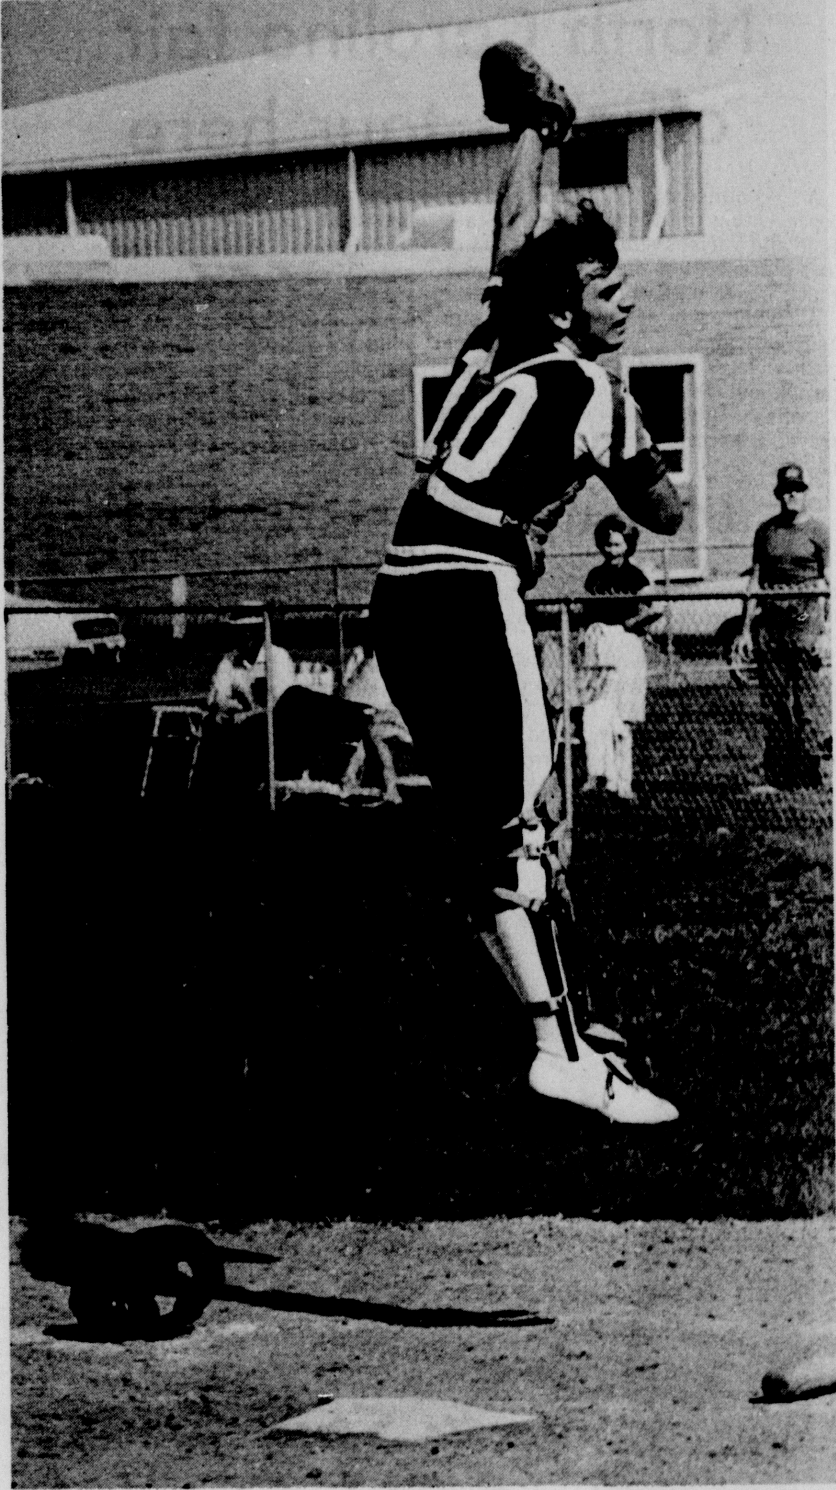

Foster yielded a sacrafice fly and retired the next two batters to get out of the jam with only one run scoring.

Post 25 scored its only run in the fifth on an RBI single by Mark Fisher.

Sunday's doubleheader was the only games played by Post 25 over the weekend. Saturday's scheduled

twinbill against Chillicothe Post 62 was postponed because of wet fields.
Post 25 will resume action Wednesday in an 8 p.m. contest at Portsmouth.

A LITTLE HIGH—Post 25 catcher John Bakenhester leaps for a throw from the outfield in Sunday's second game against Chillicothe Post 757. Although the throw was high and too late to get the runner, pitcher Stu Foster was right behind Bakenhester preventing the ball from reaching the backstop and the runners from advancing.

Olympic trials wrap up final day

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — Cyndy Poor stole the show from Francie Larrieu Lutz and Jan Merrill, Rick Wohlhuter won a bizarre race in the 1,500 meters and Dwight Stones failed to win his specialty Sunday on the final day of the U.S. Olympic track and field trials.

Miss Poor, a recent graduate of San Jose State, broke the American record by winning the women's 1,500 in 4:07.32 and predicted it would take a faster time to win the Olympic gold medal.

Springsteen wins Charity Newsies race

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Jay Springsteen, a 19-year-old from Flint, Michigan, rode away with first place honors Sunday in the 33rd annual Charity Newsies motorcycle race at the Ohio State Fairgrounds.

It was the first championship for Springsteen, who rode a Harley-Davidson to beat Ken Roberts, a two-time former grand national champion, by three-bike lengths.

Judy Rankin leads Zaharias tourney

CHAGRIN FALLS, Ohio (AP) — The leading money winner on the ladies pro golf tour, Judy Rankin, tries to maintain the three-stroke lead she attained Sunday in today's showdown with JoAnne Carner and Jane Blalock in the final round of the Babe Zaharias Invitational.

"We'll see who chokes," quipped Mrs. Carner who had very little to joke about after shooting a three-over par 75. She had entered the round with a three-stroke lead.

Olympians win archery tourney

OXFORD, Ohio (AP) — With top qualifying honors for the U.S. Olympic team already under their belts, Darrell Pace and Luann Ryon each racked up another title over the weekend, winning the National Archery Association's field archery tournament at Miami University.

Pace, 19, the three-time world champion from Reading, Ohio, unseated defending champion Douglas Brothers of Cincinnati, 1,100 to 1,086.

POISED TO THROW — Post 25 shortstop Tim Cleaver cocks his arm for a long throw to first base after scooping up a grounder behind third base. The play came in the first game of Sunday's twinbill with Post 757. The Washington C.H. team won the contest, 5-4.

Norman, Reds continue to hex Astros

HOUSTON (AP) — Although he can't pinpoint the reasons for his mastery over Houston, Fred Norman of the Cincinnati Reds hopes his career streak against the Astros continues.

The veteran lefthander combined with Rawly Eastwick on a four-hitter Sunday for Norman's seventh consecutive career victory over Houston as the Reds clipped the Astros 4-2.

Norman, 6-1 for the year, hurled the first seven innings in running his lifetime record over Houston to 10-3. Eastwick came on in relief and retired all six Astros he faced to earn his ninth save of the season.

"When you have a good career record against a club, it really picks you up," Norman said.

"I think it's kind of amazing. The Astros are a good hitting team, but it seems as if every time I pitch against them I make good pitches," he said.

The Reds used a walk, a pair of singles, and Pete Rose's tworn base hit off Houston starter and loser J.R. Richard, 7-9, to take a 2-0 second inning lead.

Houston cut the gap to 2-1 in the bottom haf of the inning on a walk to Leon Roberts and Roger Metzger's run scoring single to left.

Two unearned runs crossed the plate for Cincinnati in the fourth on a throwing error by Richard and Ken Griffey's fielder's choice.

Bob Watson blasted his eighth homer of the season in the sixth inning, providing the Astros with their second run.

The victory over Houston gave Cincinnati a 2-1 decision in their three-game weekend series as the Astros failed for the 18th consecutive time to win a series from the Reds.

Houston's loss was the 11th in their last 14 games while the victory kept Cincinnati perched atop the standings in the National League's West Division.

In this Bicentennial year, it's only fitting that baseball share in the celebration.

Woody Fryman and Manny Mota haven't reached the "200" level yet — but at least they're halfway there.

As a result of Sunday's performances, both players hit the 100 mark in aspects of the game — Fryman with his pitching and Mota with his hitting.

An especially elated Fryman gained his 100th major league victory, leading the Montreal Expos to a 4-3 decision over the Pittsburgh Pirates. A pleased Mota collected his 100th career pinch-hit, helping the Los Angeles Dodgers beat the San Francisco Giants 12-8.

Dodgers 12, Giants 8

Run-scoring singles by Ellie Rodriguez and Mota broke a tie in the fifth inning, helping Los Angeles overcome two Bobby Murcer home runs and defeat San Francisco. Murcer drove in four runs for the Giants. Five of his nine home runs this season have come against Los Angeles.

The Dodgers broke a 6-6 tie in the fifth when Ed Goodson, Bill Russell and Rodriguez singled for one run. Mota followed with a pinch-hit single, giving the Dodgers an 8-6 lead. The Dodgers added three runs in the eighth, two on Lee Lacy's bases-loaded single. Don Sutton, 7-7, earned the victory while Mike Caldwell, 0-5, took the loss.

Phillies 6, Cardinals 2

Catcher Bob Boone cracked his first major league grand slam homer and pitcher Jim Lonborg became the major league's second 10-game winner of the season as Philadelphia defeated St. Louis.

In the fourth, with the Phillies batting around in an inning for the 19th time this season, Boone smacked an 0-1 pitch over the left-field sceen to cap a six-run explosion. Lonborg, who was lifted with two out and the bass loaded in the sixth, raised his record to 10-4. Randy Jones of San Diego leads the majors with 13 triumphs.

Mets 13, Cubs 3

Phillips homered for the third successive game and Ed Kranepool hit a two-run homer in a club record-tying, eight-run second inning as New York humbled Chicago.

Phillips and Dave Kingman each delivered two-run singles in the big second as the Mets equalled their biggest inning, last accomplished in 1970 against San Francisco. It also was the biggest inning in the National League this season.

Padres 3, Braves 2

Tito Fuentes' two-out infield single in the ninth inning scored Ted Kubiak from third, giving San Diego its victory over Atlanta. Moments earlier, Braves' centerfielder Jim Wynn had prevented the Padres from winning when his perfect throw nailed San Diego's Dave Winfield at home. Winfield had attempted to score from second on a single by Johnny Grubb.

Babe Ruth results

The Jeffersonville Merchants upped their Green Land Babe Ruth League record to 5-0 Sunday with an 8-6 win over South Charleston.

The Merchants fought back from a 4-2 deficit to take the win. Ben Allen got the victory and Steve Coe led the Merchants with two hits, including a double.

The Merchants put together an eight-hit attack while South Charleston rapped out six hits, all singles.

WASHINGTON REPORT

From

WILLIAM H. HARSHA
Representative To Congress
6th District, Ohio

Two hundred years ago, John Adams set the tone for marking the observance of Independence Day.

As one who had figured prominently in the struggle for independence and the birth of our magnificent Declaration of Independence, Adams could see vividly the importance of that document's approval by the Continental Congress to America's future.

His early description of the celebration of independence has in large part characterized July 4th observances throughout our nation's 200-year history.

"I am well aware of the toil and blood and treasure it will cost us to maintain this Declaration," said Adams. And he continued: "Yet, throughout all the gloom I see the rays of ravishing light and glory. This is our day of deliverance. With solemn acts of devotion we ought to commemorate it. With pomp and show, games, sports, guns, bells, bonfires, and illuminations from one end of the continent to the other, from this time forth forevermore."

Americans everywhere are gearing up for the kind of Bicentennial celebration of Independence Day that would have made John Adams proud. The occasion is worthy of all the lavish attention it is certain to receive in a year filled with historic and meaningful anniversary observances.

After all, independence is what our Bicentennial is all about. John Adams could speak first-hand of the unbelievable hardships, suffering, and loss of life and property which characterized the struggle for independence in colonial America.

In signing the Declaration of Independence, representatives of the 13 colonies severed our political bonds with England and its oppressive rule. The vows on paper were then backed up with hard-won victories on the battlefield. Because that blow for independence and freedom from tyranny was successful, we are able to gather on this July 4th for appropriate celebrations across the land.

Yet, we must never forget that attainment of independence was but the first step. The Founding Fathers knew that freedoms won would soon mean freedoms challenged, if not again by Mothe England, certainly by some force.

John Adams talked of "toil and blood and treasure" as the costs of maintaining our independence. Even in the formative days of our new government, Benjamin Franklin, when asked what kind of government had been formed, cautioned, "a republic, if you can keep it."

Over the course of 200 years, our republic has been assaulted from without and within. And while our system has suffered occasional setbacks, it has survived essentially intact, so that it stands strong today amid the totalitarianism which characterizes so many world governments.

Our federal union is now the oldest continuously existing republic on earth operating under its original Constitution. It will continue only if we can regenerate and rekindle the kind of national spirit which gained us our independence—a precious commodity in this turbulent age—and has enabled us to grow and prosper.

We need to recapture the spirit of pioneer Americans who conquered seemingly impenetrable frontiers with a courage and determination which viewed obstacles as challenges.

We are, in a sense, the "pioneers" of America's third century. More than a physical challenge, ours is one of will. Are we going to make the commitment necessary to preserve and build on those successes achieved over the past 200 years?

Will we be equal to the hard questions which may need to be answered and the difficult steps which may be required in the years ahead?

As we celebrate America's Bicentennial and spotlight her grand achievements, we will never have a better opportunity to resolve that the next century will see an even greater America.

Greenfield boy hurt in Ohio 753 mishap

GREENFIELD — A Greenfield youth who apparently ran in front of a car on Ohio 753 was admitted Saturday to Children's Hospital, Columbus, Ohio. Highway Patrol officers reported.

Listed in "fair" condition is Kevin E. Satterfield, 3, of Greenfield. According to Ohio Highway Patrol officers, the boy attempted to run across Ohio 753 near the intersection with Dickey Road at 5 p.m. Saturday. He was struck by a car driven by Dean Haines, 55, of Rt. 2, Leesburg, which had been southbound on Ohio 753.

Patrol officers said Haines applied his brakes, and swerved his vehicle, but was unable to avoid striking the child.

CAMERA Angles

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

Ron Galella, a controversial and successful candid photographer of celebrities, presents a glittering parade of stars to justify his title in his new book, "OFFGUARD: A Paparazzo Look at the Beautiful People."

The procession of personalities proceeds through more than 350 images accompanied by admiring, colorful or revealing comments by the author, candid in words as well as in pictures.

The world's celebrities, he says, normally hire press agents to present a posed, packaged and prefabricated look, all glossed over for public approval. He, however, is after the natural, spontaneous look which presents the non-plasticized core of the stars in their unposed moods and moments.

It is not an easy job, Galella reports. In fact, it is hazardous and risky. In pursuit of his pictures, he says he has: had his jaw broken by Marlon Brando; been beaten by Richard Burton's bodyguards; been soaked by a high-pressure hose by friends of Brigitte Bardot; and been chased by Secret Service agents with instructions to smash his camera.

Despite the threats, occasional violence — and sometimes a display of folly which brings public humiliation — Galella sums up the pros and cons and makes this assessment:

"But I don't care. I see myself as the dean of American paparazzo photo-journalism, a self-appointed role, perhaps, but one I figure I've paid the dues to own. I love my work — and I'm good at it. Maybe the best at it."

His aim is not to strip the celebrity of glamour by catching him unaware, he explains. On the contrary, his purpose is to reveal the real glamour which made the celebrity a star in the first place, but which is often hidden after stardom is achieved. That's why he stalks his subjects unannounced to catch them offguard, to reveal them candidly and honestly.

Galella credits Italian film director Federico Fellini for popularizing the paparazzo style of photography. He created a character, Signor Paparazzo, in his film La Dolce Vita. The signor was a photographer who prowled Rome's Via Veneta continually shooting candid shots of the city's celebrities. The name soon symbolized the distinctive type of Italian freelance cameramen who haunted night clubs and hide-aways where stars and their companions who preferred to remain incognito were their targets.

Galella adopted and defends the paparazzo approach.

"We're talking about completely unrehearsed photography," he says, "where the expression and gesture are thoroughly spontaneous and unique to the moment and circumstance. You have to go after people where and when you can discover them in natural situations, without appointments and without an alert of any kind."

When celebrities control the situation through public relations people, the photos from such sessions are lifeless, canned and show nothing that is surprising or revealing, he believes.

"What results is not information but propaganda, not news but advertising," Galella concludes. "But I believe I'm a news photographer and that it's only proper for me, like other journalists, to use my reporting materials as I choose and as I think best serves news-gathering."

With his camera, he has become a private eye, outflanking bodyguards to focus on stars as they come and go in public places such as at airports, hotel lobbies, in streets, theaters, restaurants and at parties.

Galella acknowledges this type of photography often raises the dilemma of two fundamental but opposing rights: a person's right of privacy and the public's right to be informed about public figures.

This controversy led to the famous court case brought by Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis, with a countersuit by Galella, each claiming harassment. The decision, in March 1972, was a victory for Mrs. Onassis. Galella was prohibited from coming any closer than 25 feet from Jackie. But the court also decided that a celebrity is a public figure in public places and, in these situations, waives the right to privacy.

Galella hails this part of the decision as an important victory for all journalists in support of freedom of the press.

Celebrities are created for the public... and by the public. They also create in the public an insatiable curiosity about their stars' lives — their lifestyles, their personal activities, their fun and games. When a celebrity becomes unavailable, uncooperative and elusive to photographers, the demand for pictures increases proportionately. And so does the value of pictures which are obtained.

Isn't that the climate which fosters the growth of the paparazzo approach in photography and which has made Ron Galella the outstanding successful practitioner of that art?

His new book seems to answer the question with a "Yes."

Role of 'The Ladies' In U.S. History Shown

THIS ENGLISH political cartoon satirizes the occasion on Oct. 25, 1774, when 51 of the leading women of the Albemarle region of North Carolina gathered at Edenton and drew up a resolution boycotting use of "East India tea" as a token of support for the American cause. The cartoon is from the exhibition, "...Remember the Ladies...Women in America 1750-1815," which will tour the country after its initial showing in Plymouth, Mass. (Engraving courtesy Boston Public Library.)

PLYMOUTH, Mass. (AP) — Following its premiere three-month showing here starting June 30, an exhibition that examines the role of women during a dramatic period in American history will be on view through 1977 in a number of cities across the nation.

Remember the Ladies...Women in America 1750-1815 provides an overview of the domestic life and fluctuating status of all American women — society women, working women, American Indian women, slaves and indentured servants — from the Revolution to the height of the Republican Era.

Many of its documents, artifacts and works of art, on loan from private collections, museums and historical societies, will be on national view for the first time, according to Conover Hunt, a noted American curator who organized the show, jointly sponsored by Clairol and Philip Morris Inc.

"The exhibition is a rediscovery of the diverse role played by women during the era of American independence, a story largely ignored, suppressed or forgotten today," says Miss Hunt, former director of the DAR Museum in Washington, whose search for material took her to 110 museums and private collections.

"In the middle of the 18th century, American women had achieved a status they would not regain until our own time," she adds. "But from 1750 to 1815, the status of women declined sharply. Upper class women of the early 19th century withdrew from economic and political life, opting for domesticity and dependence."

For all others, including slaves and Indian women, freedom and opportunity became more elusive. In the process, the very real and substantial role of women in the creation of American independence was literally forgotten. The written history of the period not only diminished women's role; it all but obliterated it.

The exhibition fills in that gap in our nation's history by providing a well rounded view of our "founding women" and revealing far greater levels of heroism, influence and achievement than standard history has ever recognized, Miss Hunt points out.

Its highlights include: the lives of Revolutionary-era women, some of whom made guns as well as flags, became expert spies, scouts and smugglers of supplies for the Continental Army and, in some cases, fought as soldiers in the cause of independence.

Also the prose and polemics of Mercy Otis Warren, a major influence on the leaders and events that shaped early U.S. history, and the story of the internationally acclaimed slave poet Phillis Wheatley.

There are displays, including her cookbook, concerning the outspoken Abigail Adams, whose entreaty to her husband John to "remember the ladies" in the writing of the Constitution — which he shrugged off — gives the exhibition its title.

Included in the wide-ranging collection gathered by Miss Hunt are an exceptional selection of women's paintings and needlework; a wealth of period costumes, furnishings, engravings and portraits; Dolley Madison's turban, and a first edition of Miss Warren's "History of the American Revolution" with her notations.

A three-car accident Saturday on the Ohio Turnpike killed two northern Ohio girls.
The other multiple-fatality accident killed three women passengers and a male driver when their car missed a curve, skidded 258 feet, then hit a fence and tree near Washington Court House.

It was at almost the same spot where a teen-age boy died 13 hours earlier when the car in which he was a passenger missed the same curve from the other direction and hit another tree.
The state Highway Patrol's tabulation of weekend highway deaths begins at 6 p.m. Friday and continues until midnight Sunday.

Food value concerns American consumers

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer
A new government study indicates that Americans are concerned about the nutritional value of the food they eat and are willing to pay a little more for extra information.
The study was conducted by the division of consumer studies of the Food and Drug Administration. It was the second such survey to try to check such items as consumer knowledge on nutrition.
The final results of the study have not been published and are expected out in about a month. A preliminary report provides some clues, however.
Among the findings:
—Almost three out of five shoppers — 59 per cent — say they have seen nutritional labeling (now required for manufacturers who make a nutritional claim for their products). More than half of those who are familiar with the labeling say they use the information in choosing some foods and beverages.

—Countering claims by some industry spokesmen who say consumers would object to the higher prices resulting from nutritional labeling, the FDA survey found that 65 per cent of those questioned would be willing to pay at least 10 cents more on their weekly food bill in exchange for the information. Fifty-six per cent would be willing to pay an extra 30 cents and 40 per cent would be willing to pay an extra 50 cents.
—In addition to looking at nutritional information on labels, shoppers also check for items such as open dating and unit pricing. About 75 per cent of those surveyed looked for dates on products and 41 per cent looked for unit pricing.

At the same time, however, there were indications that consumers don't always understand the information they get. When asked what the date on a milk carton meant, for example, more than half of those questioned either were unsure or mistakenly thought the milk should be used by the date given. (It should have been sold by the listed date.) More than half the shoppers — 62 per cent — said they would rather have the "use by" date instead of the "sell by" date.
—Many consumers are misinformed about basic nutrition and the problem is more severe among those with less education. Two out of five people surveyed didn't understand the "U.S. Recommended Daily Allowance" or RDA part of the label. (The government recommends a given amount of nutrients such as protein and vitamins for every adult per day; nutritional labeling gives the percentage of these requirements provided by one serving of the product.)

The survey covered 1,664 persons who do at least half the food shopping for their households. They were interviewed in their homes.

Misbehaving inmates put on diapers, given bottles

WALLA WALLA, Wash. (AP) — Some Washington State Penitentiary inmates who misbehaved had to wear diapers, crawl on the floor and carry baby bottles. Others were chained and handcuffed to beds.
It was all part of Dr. William Hunter's system for modifying the behavior of inmates who had a history of violence and self-destruction. The program was praised by many penal experts, and it was condemned by many lawyers defending inmate clients.
"Probably the most effective rehabilitation program that may well exist in the prison system," said a Johns Hopkins University expert. Said an attorney, "He beat people into submission."
The psychologist, relieved as director of the prison's mental health program June 2, said he feels he was sacrificed by politicians "who want to save their own throats." He is now a therapist, with two months to go to retirement at 67.

Hunter, in an interview, said his methods worked. They dealt with the "worst, most hopeless people in this state" on their own levels, he said.
"The makeup of the psychopath's personality is such that he does not comprehend the feeling he is trying to cover up," Hunter said. "He is usually sensitive and insecure, but he acts callous and tough because he doesn't want anyone to know it."
"As long as we treat ignorance with punishment, we won't help the guy."
"If a grown man urinates in his pants and acts like a baby, he isn't punished by being put in diapers because it doesn't embarrass him."
"The point is to get him to realize what playing the role of the baby is all the way. In fact, all this penitentiary is a big babysitting operation."
Hunter said he treated more than 1,000 inmate-patients in his 12 years at the prison. And he said he could not recall one individual in his program who returned to the prison after being paroled.
